England, France Debate Methods Of Paying Debts

Paris Finance Minister
Hints Installment
Will be Met
APPROVAL NEEDED
Payment Will be Last Pending Reconsid-eration, Claim

Washington—(P)—Secretary Stimson in the American reply to the last French debt note said the government "has not been able to reach the conclusion that a postponement of the Dec. 15 payment from the French government to the United States is necessary because of its effect on the problem of recovery."

"The president of the United States," Stimson said, "is prepared through whatever agency may seem appropriate, to cooperate with the French government in surveying the entire situation and in considering what means may be taken to bring about the restoration of stable currencies and exchange, the revival of trade and the recovery of prices."

(By the Associated Press)
Developments in Europe indicate that both England and France will pay the money they owe the United States next Thursday.

There was no flat statement from an official quarter either in London or Paris that this decision has been reached, but in both capitals the cabinet gave their attention to evolving the most practical method of payment.

An official statement in London said that this matter will be considered at a cabinet meeting early next week when Prime Minister MacDonald comes back from the disarmament meeting at Geneva.

In Paris the minister of finance advised the foreign affairs committee and the financial committee of the chamber of deputies that the government is disposed to pay with the understanding that this will be the last payment, pending reconsideration of the entire debt structure. The French premier must now go before the chamber of deputies for approval of this course, and it was expected that he would be upheld.

Paris—(P)—Finance Minister Louis Germain-Martin advised a joint session of the foreign affairs and finance committees of the chamber of deputies today that the French government was disposed to make the December debt payment to the United States with reservations.

Premier Herriot, who also addressed a joint session of the two committees, told them he wants time to study the latest American note before deciding upon a definite course.

Several of this morning's newspapers said M. Herriot and Prime Minister MacDonald tentatively agreed at their conference yesterday to pay the installments due in December, but that M. Herriot stipulated he would have to submit his recommendations to parliament.

The newspapers expressed the hope that a general conference with the United States participating will clean up the entire debt problem. The Paris press obviously is preparing the public for the necessity of paying the $20,000,000 due.

Manchurian Problem Given to Committee

Geneva, Switzerland—(P)—The league of nations assembly, closing an eventful debate on the Manchurian situation, voted today to refer that issue to the conciliation committee of 19 with a request that the committee report as soon as possible on proposals by the assembly for settlement.

The Lytton report, the record of the discussions in the assembly, and all pertinent documents were passed on to the committee with out comment, and thus the clash over a resolution by four small powers condemning Japan's Manchurian policy was avoided.

This procedure was regarded as a success for Japan and for a policy of conciliation with the support of the big powers.

President Hears Farm Delegates Present Demands

Petitions Also Offered to Vice President and Speaker of House

Washington—(P)—A delegation of five farmers, one a Negro, representing the National Farmers' Relief conference, today was received by President Hoover, who listened for more than 10 minutes to the reading of a lengthy statement containing eight demands for farm relief.

A group of 150 farmers marched up Capitol Hill, divided themselves into many delegations, and presented relief petitions to Vice President Curtis, Speaker Garner and members of the senate and house.

While a large number waited outside, a delegation led by Lewis C. Bentley of Perkasie, Pa., called on Vice President Curtis in the senate office building and presented a petition for a $500,000,000 federal relief fund for distressed farmers, a moratorium on agriculture debts and cancellation of back taxes for farmers in need.

The vice president, as in the case of the relief demonstrators here earlier in the week, promised to present the farmers' demands to the senate.

Many in the delegation at the capitol wore overalls. Several women accompanied the marchers.

Aid Wounded Vets First, Hines' Plea

Scores Application for Help Where Self-Support is Possible

Washington—(P)—Frank T. Hines, veterans administrator, today told a joint congressional committee he could "see no reasonable justification" for a veteran whose disabilities are not connected with service duty "applying to his government for aid when he is able to provide for himself."

The first witness to appear before the group which is studying all veterans legislation and possible economies, he put before the committee a national policy of veterans relief, resting on equality in benefits; consideration of the degree of disability, and financial need for government aid.

The policy, Hines said, should extend aid first to those having disabilities incurred in or aggravated by military service.

"Second," he continued, "to those who, while not suffering from disability directly attributable to military service, have become through age or disability, unable to carry on for themselves."

"If we lend countenance to the idea that any young man who renders military service to his country should thereby feel entitled to a reward for such duty, then it seems to me we are undermining the very foundation of good citizenship and proper self respect."

"To a veteran who comes unscathed through a war, the government owes its gratitude for his patriotism, but until the time comes in his life when age or disability makes it impossible for him to support himself, the government, in my opinion owes such veteran no more than it owes any other loyal citizen."

Suspect Acquitted but Held for Minnesota

Barron, Wis.—(P)—Although acquitted by a circuit court jury of a charge of participating in the robbery July 11, 1931, of the Bank of Cameron, at Cameron, Wis., Jack Chick, 35, Milwaukee, was still a prisoner in the county jail here today.

Chick was arrested in Milwaukee last May and had been held in jail here since. His trial started Tuesday.

After the jury reported its verdict in the Cameron robbery late yesterday Chick was returned to custody of the sheriff to be held for Lonsdale, Minn., authorities who want to question him in connection with the $11,000 robbery of the State Bank of Lonsdale on Jan. 10, 1930.

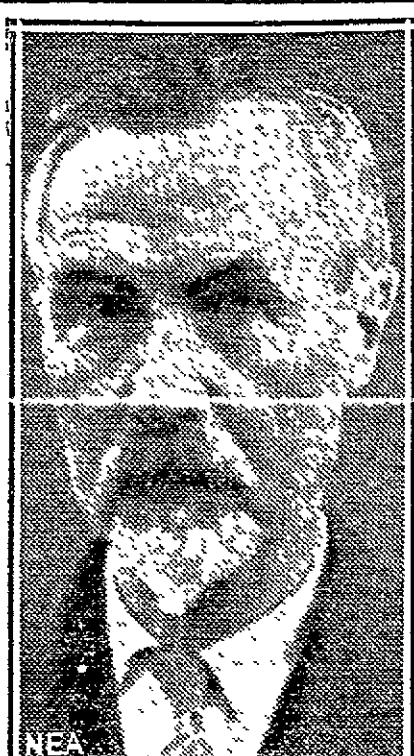

In January, 1931, Chick was acquitted of a charge of robbing a bank at Grantsburg, Wis., and a month later at Ladysmith a charge of participating in the robbery of a Weyerhaeuser bank was dismissed.

Roosevelt Calls Extra Term of Legislature

Albany, N. Y.—(P)—An extraordinary session of the state legislature, product of troubled conditions, was called today with President-elect Roosevelt at the helm.

From many demands for changes in law and government involving thousands of jobs and millions in municipal funds, Governor Roosevelt will select one or more problems for submission to the lawmakers as requiring immediate attention.

Free State Head

Introducing Donnell Ua Buachalla, the new Governor General of the Irish Free State who, inasmuch as possible, refuses to use the English language and carries on correspondence in his beloved Gaelic. His English name is Donal Buckley and he was one of the active participants in the famous Easter rebellion in 1916, at which time he was arrested and interned in England.

Let States Fix Alcoholic Limit For Beer—Amlic

No Action Taken at Hearing on Badger Representative's Suggestion

Washington—(P)—One after another, in quick step order, witnesses wanting beer viewed its legalization as a boon to employment, the railroads and assorted industries, in continuation of testimony today before the house ways and means committee.

A new suggestion was volunteered by Representative Amlic (R., Wis.) to the effect that each state be allowed to fix its own alcoholic content, instead of having it fixed at 2.75 as the Collier bill does or at 3.2 as many witnesses for brewing interests have advocated.

"No action was taken, however, and none will be until opposition to the legislation is recorded, probably early next week."

Tomorrow Secretary Mills is to testify, but whether as a spokesman for the administration has not been announced.

Edward Verdi of Hoboken, N. J., representing the Associated Cooperatives, estimated Volstead modification would provide steady employment for 27,075 men and that 69,800 carloads of freight would be handled by the railroads, as a result, too.

The motor truck industry also would benefit, said D. C. Fenner, of New York, representing the Mack-International Motor Truck corporation.

"We have always felt that brewers played a very large part in the early development of horseless transportation," he added.

A prediction that legalization of beer would have a psychological effect beneficial to business was made to the house ways and means committee by George P. McCabe, of the Associated Producers of Cereal Beverages, who thereby caused a flurry of dispute.

Representative Treadwell (R., Mass.) wanted to know "will the man in the street, the mill worker for instance, have any money to spend for beer? It looks to me that there will be no increase in the amount of money spent."

Representative McCormack (D., Mass.) interrupted to say that by "legalizing beer, you will divert money spent for illegal liquor for legal, taxable beer."

How to Resign His New Congress Post Puzzle to Garner

Washington—(P)—Deeply puzzled, Speaker Garner has asked—and received—advice on how to resign from an office he never has taken.

"The office of that representative from the Fifteenth Texas district was elected to the job on the same day he was elected vice president of the United States."

This unprecedented problem of representing vice-president-elect being too much for him, Garner wrote William Tyler Page, former house clerk and authority on constitutional precedents, asking whether he could "legally resign from an office to which elected without having taken it."

Page replied there were two ways out. One was to send his resignation to Governor Stirling of Texas, as soon as his certificate of election to the next house has been received by the clerk of the house. Then the governor, Page said, could call an election to fill the "vacancy."

This was the method Page thought preferable and which Garner has decided to employ within a short time.

3 Sentenced For Violating Lottery Laws

Mann, Hering and McGuire
Face Imprisonment
And Large Fines

PREPARE TO APPEAL

10-Day Stay Granted by Federal Judge Pending
Motions for Bail

New York—(P)—Conrad H. Mann, president of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce, was sentenced today to serve five months imprisonment and pay a fine of $12,000 for violation of the federal lottery laws in connection with "frolics" of the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Frank E. Hering, who was editor of the Eagles Magazine, was sentenced to four months imprisonment and to pay a fine of $4,000.

Bernard C. McGuire, one of the promoters, was sentenced to serve a year and a day and was fined $12,000.

Mann, auditor and past president of the Eagles, was sentenced to five months on each of two counts, the sentences to run concurrently. The three were found guilty by a federal jury late Saturday.

With the consent of Assistant U. S. Attorney Louis M. Treadwell, Judge Coleman stayed execution of the sentence for ten days and released the defendants in the custody of their attorneys, pending motions for bail on appeal to be made before the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Mann and Hering, having received sentences of less than a year, will serve them in the federal house of detention in New York. McGuire it was said, probably will go to Atlanta.

Mann, head of the bazaar department of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, contracted with McGuire to promote a fund-raising enterprise which took the form of "charity frolics and dances" for local Eagle aerics, for which prize tickets were sold.

Testimony during the trial showed that more than $1,750,000 was taken in on the enterprise, that the local aerics received 25 per cent of the gross, that Mann and McGuire received $230,800 each in profits, and that Hering got a third of Mann's share.

Judge's Statement
Judge Coleman, explaining that he had pronounced sentence on all three men together to avert unnecessary suspense, said:

"I believe that this lottery was run honestly, with the qualification that many, if not most, of the purchasers of these tickets had no idea that the promoters were profiting to the extent of $500,000 from contributions, the share for charities being as small as it was."

"It may be that the defendants did not know that they were violating a criminal statute and one may assume that they would not have perpetrated the acts complained of if they had known they were committing a crime. However, they must have known that they were skirting the criminal law. I believe they took a chance of committing a crime because of the very large profits which were to be divided among them. As to the guilt of the three defendants, my belief is that Hering is the least culpable, his interest having been smallest and his activity least, as were his profits."

"McGuire is the most culpable, having made business out of promoting such enterprises. I have fixed the terms of imprisonment as low as can be done in view of the need of deterring others from like practices."

Delay Arraignment Of Former Bank Head

Green Bay—(P)—Because civil matters occupied the entire morning session of the federal court of Green Bay today, the arraignment of Joseph Taylor, former president of the McCarty National bank, on charges of misappropriating the funds of that institution, was postponed until this afternoon.

Omer M. Kiley, former cashier of the National Bank of DePere, who faces similar charges, also was present, and was expected to be a witness this afternoon in a trial concerning the ownership of bonds found among that bank's assets.

Begin Construction of "Ice Cathedral" Today

An "ice cathedral," probably the only one in Wisconsin this year, will be erected on Lawrence college campus by the Appleton Post-Crescent in cooperation with a number of manufacturing and business firms. Construction will be started today and the building probably will be completed by next Tuesday or Wednesday evening.

Nearly forty tons of clear crystal ice furnished by the Lutz Ice Co. will be used in the building which will be about 14 feet wide by 19 feet long and 16 feet high. Nearly 10,000 watts of electricity will be used to illuminate the building from the inside. The dozens of colored lights shining through the ice walls will leave a marvellous impression.

Lawrence college campus was selected as the site for the structure because of the beautiful setting in the trees and because of ease of access. The building will not be opened to the public, inasmuch as it will contain only the apparatus

Hoover Outlines Plan to Reorganize 58 Executive Bodies and Eliminate 15

Tax Sales Delay Puzzle Put Before State High Court

Tribunal to Decide Whether County Has Right
To O. K. Extensions

Madison—(P)—The state supreme court will decide through a test case filed today whether those counties which extended 1932 tax sales at the request of Gov. Philip F. LaFollette had a legal right to do so.

The supreme court consented to make original action upon the application of the county of Milwaukee and County Treasurer Patrick McManus for a declaratory judgment to settle the puzzling legal question involved.

The cities of Milwaukee and South Milwaukee and the village of Whitefish Bay were named respondents.

Another respondent is T. F. Miller, purchaser of a prior tax certificate who filed a refund claim with the Milwaukee county board alleging there was no legal authority for holding the sale on Nov. 21 when he bought the certificate.

Because of the unusual statewide interest in the outcome the court set the matter down for argument Jan. 14 at 9 a. m., and invited all local units concerned to file briefs as friends of the court. These briefs must be filed by Jan. 2.

Governor LaFollette issued two proclamations last June 1 and Oct. 15 which urged county treasurers to be lenient with taxpayers who had failed to settle and to adjourn tax sales from day to day offering only the parcels on which the counties held certificates.

The governor's purpose was to put the matter of delinquency up to the 1933 legislature so that body might decide whether the statutory penalties and interest charges against delinquent taxes were to be omitted.

Stand Supported
His authority to issue the proclamations was upheld by the attorney general's office upon the refusal of some counties to abide. The attorney general also ruled that the county treasurers, in their judgment legally could do what the governor asked.

The tax sales first were adjourned from the second Tuesday in June to Oct. 15 and by later proclamation to Feb. 1, 1933, which is three weeks after the next legislature will have convened. Milwaukee is one of those which acquiesced.

Among the points which the county officials want the supreme court to settle are these:

Legality of adjourning the sales from day to day.

Whether the offering of a single parcel daily conflicts with the statutes.

Legality of selling any property still delinquent on Feb. 1, 1933.

If it is valid to sell the balances remaining Feb. 1 what date shall be set for the sales?

Dates on which tax certificates should bear interest if the daily adjournment was legal.

Necessity of readvertising the sales of old delinquencies if they are to be held after Feb. 1.

Who is legally liable for the cost of any readvertising?

Any and all rights and duties of the county and treasurer under the existing situation.

HEADS BASEBALL CLUBS

Columbus, Ohio—(P)—Judge W. C. Braham of Duram, N. C., today was elected president of the National Association of Professional Baseball clubs. He was named for a one-year term at a salary of $6,000.

London—(P)—Marilyn Miller, stage and screen star, has been ill since her arrival in London Tuesday and was still confined to bed today in her hotel here.

Hoover Plan in Brief

Washington—(P)—The principal effects of President Hoover's consolidation orders, unless vetoed by congress, will be:

Reshaping the department of interior into an agency handling virtually all public building and public works, including rivers and harbors and flood control; and all education, health and recreation activities of the government, including the public health service.

Groupings under the department of commerce of all merchant marine activities, including the now independent merchant fleet corporation; and the hydrographic office of the navy and naval observatory.

Giving the department of commerce control of the weather bureau, and assigning the general land office to the department of agriculture to create a division of land utilization.

Giving the coast guard control of the border patrol of both immigration and customs services, thus changing it with control of all entry to the United States.

Abolishing the employees compensation commission and certain minor agencies whose duties would be taken over by the District of Columbia.

President Hoover's orders for reorganization and consolidation of government activities, will, unless congress intervenes, go into effect on Feb. 9 of next year.

This will be barely more than three weeks before he turns over the government to Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Congress has retained the authority within the intervening 60 days to:

Approve the executive orders and thus put them into immediate effect, or

Suspend them entirely by passage of an appropriate resolution, or

Alter them by passing consolidating legislation of its own.

Warmer Weather Due in Wisconsin

Rising Temperature May Be Followed by Snowfall in State

Milwaukee—(P)—Cold which invaded Wisconsin from the frozen northwest today was taking a lingering leave.

Indications throughout the state and the Michigan peninsula were that winter's onslaught was losing its force. In many places it was still bitterly cold, but official predictions were that temperatures would moderate gradually.

The northwestern section of the state was expected to feel the change tonight. Central regions will be warmer tomorrow. Warmth is bringing moisture laden clouds and in most sections snow tomorrow afternoon or night was regarded probable.

In Milwaukee the minimum last night was zero and numerous persons trooped to the emergency hospitals to have frost bites attended. Several were injured by slipping on icy walks.

Rhineland reported the lowest Wisconsin temperature. Mercury there slipped to 19 degrees below zero.

Finance Body to Win Senate's O. K., Belief

Washington—(P)—A "clean bill of health" for the Reconstruction corporation was indicated today following a meeting of the special senate committee created to investigate the relief organization's loan policy.

After a review of the corporation's loans in an executive meeting, members indicated no fault would be found with the administration of the gigantic government agency on the basis of records so far examined.

These did not include loans made for a short period early last summer, however, before the house began to make the transactions of the corporation public.

The committee agreed Chairman Coughs announced, not to recommend making public the loans made by the corporation prior to the enactment of the relief bill last summer.

Report Hitler's Aides Deserting His Leadership

Nazi Leader's Lieutenant
Resigns as National Organizer

Berlin—(P)—Rumors of a split in Adolf Hitler's National Socialist party gained strength today and evening newspapers blamed the retirement of some of his chief aides on Hitler's determination to keep the party power in his own hands.

Gregor Strasser, long regarded as his right-hand man, resigned as national organizer of the party this morning, explained that his health would not permit him to continue the work. The party newspaper Angriff denied that it was a resignation and said Strasser was only taking a vacation.

Gottlieb Feder, one of the party's economic experts, requested three weeks leave and this too was reported to be a prelude to dropping out of the party.

There was a rumor that Chancellor von Schleicher himself had brought about the split, possibly by offering Strasser a cabinet job. The newspapers said Dr. Wilhelm Frick, another important figure, had lined up with Strasser and Feder and that this was the wedge which may separate the Nationalists from the Socialist element in the party.

Chancellor von Schleicher planned to adjourn the Reichstag today. There was an indication as to how Strasser's vacation might affect the Nazi attitude toward that program.

This evening, however, Dr. Frick issued a statement denying that he was identified with any movement of opposition against the Hitler leadership. The 162 Nazi members of the Prussian Landtag announced that they were united behind Hitler.

Other Groupings
In addition to the consolidation under the four new titles, the president contemplated other groupings, such as the consolidation into the coast guard of the border patrol of the labor department's immigration service, and the border patrol of the treasury department's customs service.

The weather bureau of the department of agriculture would be shifted to the department of commerce, while the powers and duties of the federal oil conservation board would be abolished.

The chief executive told congress he would make no attempt to calculate the total savings that might be expected from his plan. He pointed out, however, that the total appropriations for the agencies concerned is approximately $700,000,000.

Difficulties in having his proposals accepted already have been forecast by Mr. Hoover. In his regular annual message submitted last Tuesday, he said:

"The congress must be warned that a host of interested persons inside and outside the government whose vision is concentrated on some particular function will at once protest against these proposals. These same sort of activities have prevented reorganization of the government for over a quarter of a century. They must be disregarded if the task is to be accomplished."

In his message today, in addition to outlining the proposed 58 shifts of agencies, the president disclosed that he has still further consolidation

Continue Debate On Independence

Trade Relations With Philippines Chief Center Of Arguments

Washington—(P)—As the senate swung into its second day of debate over Philippine independence today, sponsors of the legislation pointed principal arguments would revolve around trade relations pending full freedom rather than constitutional aid as raised by Senator Copeland (D., N. Y.).

Senator Smoot (R., Utah.) let it be known he was considering an amendment to reduce the permissible sugar imports free of duty, which the pending Hawes-Cutting bill fixes at $50,000 tons annually for the transition period prior to full independence in 1935.

The Utah senator always an advocate of a high sugar tariff to protect the beet sugar industry of the west, said 800,000 tons of raw and 50,000 tons of refined sugar, the allowance fixed in the bill, was too large. He has not determined what smaller figure he will recommend.

On the other hand, Representative Hare (D., S. C.) author of the bill approved by the house last session granting independence in eight years, in a letter to Senator Hawes (D., N. C.) co-author with Senator Cutting (R., N. M.) of the bill before the senate, urged a limit of 1,000,000 tons of free sugar imports including 50,000 tons of refined. He, like Hawes, visited the islands in the early part of this year.

REGENT VON HORTHY ILL

Budapest, Hungary—(P)—Regent Nicholas von Horthy today lay ill with intestinal trouble, which physicians said was not dangerous, but which would compel him to stay in bed several days.

Calls for Creation of Four New "Little Cabinet" Posts

CONGRESS MAY ACT
Orders Effective in 60 Days Unless They Are Blocked

Washington—(P)—In a bulky message, President Hoover today placed before congress a series of recommendations for partially reorganizing the federal government by reshaping 58 executive branches in a new pattern and reducing the number of independent agencies by 15.

The maze of proposals called for no additional offices, but regrouping the duties of four assistant secretaries in the "little cabinet." The new titles would be assistant secretaries of the interior for public works; of the interior for education, health and recreation; of agriculture for land utilization; and of commerce for merchant marine.

Under them would be consolidated various bureaus and agencies now spread throughout the government, although often conducting similar work.

Simultaneously with the outlining of the duties of four assistant secretaries in the "little cabinet," the president submitted 11 executive orders for carrying it into effect. If no congressional objection is raised within 60 days the reorganization will go forward as proposed.

Senators and representatives of both parties were chary at immediate formal comment pending study of the message. There was early speculation, however, that some block might be placed in the path of the president's plan by Democratic leaders, particularly in view of the recent announcement by President-elect Roosevelt that he intended calling in experts for a pre-inauguration study designed to produce a reorganization plan of his own.

Other Groupings
In addition to the consolidation under the four new titles, the president contemplated other groupings, such as the consolidation into the coast guard of the border patrol of the labor department's immigration service, and the border patrol of the treasury department's customs service.

Asks Change in Law Governing Feeble Minded

County Judges to Act Upon Resolution to Permit Legal Sterilization

Milwaukee—(P)—A resolution favoring removal of legal obstacles in Wisconsin to permit sterilization of the feeble minded and other, socially defective persons was prepared by Judge Ward Winton of Sheil Lake, for presentation at the final session of the county judges' annual convention here today.

Judge Winton, an advocate of the belief that there is great social waste because of too much restriction, said a majority of his colleagues favor revision of the present law, which permits only sterilization of inmates of feeble minded institutions and then only under approval of the state board of control.

During a discussion of the question yesterday it was pointed out that the care of feeble minded "borderline" cases surmounted the costs of old age pensions in many counties. The present law, the attorney general has ruled, prohibits sterilization even with the consent of the subject.

Parents were blamed for the growth of crime by Judge P. L. Lincoln of Richland Center, who led a discussion of juvenile delinquency.

"Parents are passing on to the court unwarranted responsibilities in the rearing of their children," Judge Lincoln said. "Many of the problems now coming into the juvenile courts should be cared for at home. We must convince parents they must assume parental responsibility for their children."

"There has been a 25 per cent increase in juvenile delinquency," he added, "and the courts must pass the remedy back to the home if at all possible."

A uniform interpretation of the statute covering medical care of indigents was urged by Judge B. B. McDonald, Oshkosh, who said the present law permits abuses. A more thorough investigation of social status in adoption cases was advocated by Judge O. W. Arnquist, Hudson. The proposal of Judge R. R. Luce, Elkhorn, that the judges sponsor legislation to prevent "meddling" of county boards with their salaries was tabled in a committee hearing.

Wright Purchases Tri-Neon Sign Co.

Appleton Man Is New President and Manager of Corporation

E. W. Wright, 902 E. Washington, has purchased the stock of the Tri-Neon Sign Co. on Highway 41 near the end of S. Memorial-dr, it was announced today.

The company operates as a corporation, the new officers being Mr. Wright, president and manager; Robert Zwier, vice president; and H. J. Vorr, secretary and treasurer. The company was organized May 1, 1929, at Reedsburg. In March, 1930, the plant was moved to Appleton into new quarters on Highway 41. At that time the institution also was incorporated. The former president and manager of the company was W. F. Ehler, one of the founders of the firm at Reedsburg.

This plant is recognized as one of the largest and most complete of its kind north of Milwaukee. Signs are to be found in Appleton, Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, Neenah, Menasha, Kaukauna, Rhinelander, Antigo, Stevens Point, LaCrosse, Clintonville, New London, Wausau and many other cities in the state.

Nation Hopes for Relief from Cold

Warmer Weather Reported On Way to Most Frigid Regions of U. S.

(By the Associated Press)

Wintry weather clung tenaciously to large areas of the nation today but there was hope of quick relief from the weather man.

The prediction was for rising temperatures today in the Dakotas and northern Minnesota, with a spreading of the warmer weather to the eastern and southern sections tomorrow.

Meanwhile reports of low temperature readings continued far south as Amarillo and Lubbock, Texas, the mercury dipped to 11 above zero, and it was predicted freezing temperatures would reach down to Corpus Christi, At Elcho Lake, Mont., it was really chilly with 36 below zero.

The midday west and far west bore the brunt of the disturbance. Duluth, Minn., reported 16 below. Chicago shivered in temperatures near zero and five persons were reported dead. All deaths were attributed to heart attacks; superinduced by the extreme cold.

Snow whirled along the Pacific coast, with a gale which reached as far south as San Francisco, and snowstorms in the Sierra Nevada mountains forced temporary abandonment of westbound transcontinental mail and passenger planes.

A bright spot in the picture was seen by Kansas farmers. They hailed the snow as coming at a time when it was needed to furnish moisture for their wheat lands.

Kansas weather bureau officials expressed belief the cold snap had caused extensive damage to winter wheat. One man was found frozen to death at Enid, Okla.

Superior Street Blossoms Out as Business Avenue

Ornamental Lights Emphasize Importance of This Thoroughfare

Superior-st., for many years "just another street" as the last year has been known to as one of Appleton's principal thoroughfares. Since the erection of the Post-Crescent building and the postoffice, this street has taken on a decided importance that is emphasized by the ornamental lights turned on for the first time this week.

This important role in the city, historical data revealing many interesting facts regarding the business ventures which grew and developed and then faded into oblivion.

It bears an "obvious" name similar to many others in the city, revealing the title because it was considered the western boundary of the village of Appleton in the early '50s. A narrow roadway lay on the east of a wide ravine and separated the "Chute" from the village.

In early years the street was set off by a beautiful row of trees which stood on the present site of the Insurance building, erected in 1922. The large residence was surrounded by an imposing iron fence mounted on a low concrete and stone wall, and large shade trees stood on College-ave and Superior-st. In the yard were large pine and black walnut trees and flower beds to complete the picture.

Old Cemetery
This city's first cemetery, a community proposition, was located on Superior-st. where the Hettlinger Lumber Co. now stands. The cemetery came into existence shortly after the city was incorporated as a village. In 1880 it was decided to move the cemetery to Riverside where the Appleton Cemetery association had purchased considerable ground on the north banks of the Fox river. The task of moving the bodies from one cemetery to the other continued until 1891. In recent years, however, employees of the lumber company have found traces of the old burial ground, unearthing handles of caskets and other relics while digging trenches in the lumber yard.

Superior-st. also formed the west boundary of this city's earliest railroad activities and at the present time the new freight depot of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad company stands at the intersection of N. Superior and W. Franklin-sts. The building was erected in 1928 and replaced the old structure which formerly stood on N. Appleton-st. The first railroad line crossed Superior-st. when the road was built in 1860 and 1861 and since that time numerous switch tracks cross the street.

The old Turner hall which stood on the site vacated a year ago by the Turner Gold course is well remembered by many Appletonians. The hall was constructed in 1894 shortly after the organization of the Turner society, an athletic association composed of early German gymnasts.

That building was sold in 1892 to the Wisconsin Malt and Grain Co. which occupied the site until about six years ago when the many buildings on the property were razed. The new Lutz Ice Co. manufacturing plant, erected early this year, stands on the northern part of the old malt house premises.

One of the city's early hospitals also was located on Superior-st. The structure was planned and erected by Dr. A. M. Freund and was known as the Freund hospital, a public institution. It was erected in 1881 and existed for many years. Later when it was abandoned the building was utilized by various business enterprises. One of the last of the buildings on the site of the Freund hospital was the August Brandt building on the northwestern corner of Superior-st. and College-ave. Later the Globe hotel stood on that location.

The present home of the Wisconsin Telephone Co. was erected in 1911 and 1912. The telephone company moved into the structure from old quarters on the second floor of the Langenhorn shoe store on W. College-ave. In recent years additions have been built, the last of them being erected three years ago.

In recent years the southern limits of the street have been extended to W. Lawrence-st. by filling in the ravine. Prior to that time the street blended into Jones park.

Superior-st. from College-ave to W. Packard-st. was paved with asphalt in 1913 by the White Construction Co. of Chicago. Prior to that time the street was gravelled. In 1921 the pavement was extended from Packard to Atlantic-sts. at a cost of approximately $5,200. The Western Improvement Co. had the contract.

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMANN

TOO MUCH IS TOO MUCH
WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.

Governor Roosevelt has been forced to cut short his stay at Warm Springs, interrupting his consideration of national affairs, and plunge himself into the intricate financial and administrative difficulties of New York City.

The Herald Tribune correspondent, Mr. Ernest Lindley, writing from the Roosevelt train, says that Mr. Roosevelt's intimate associates have felt for some time that he would like to wind up his career in Albany by lending a hand to the reorganization of the New York City government. It is impossible. No human mind can deal effectively with the complex of national and international problems for which Mr. Roosevelt must shape policies and at the same time be Governor of New York State and reformer and savior of New York City.

It is now plain to all that Mr. Roosevelt as President-elect must not only assume the ultimate command of the Executive branch of the Government but must prepare himself for a special session shortly after his inauguration. Barely three months remain before he must assume the administrative burdens of the Presidency. In these three months he has an opportunity for study, reflection, and consideration of the problems which he will have to deal with. It would be a thousand pities if he wasted any part of this time by letting himself be diverted, distracted, and wearied by a multiplicity of affairs. If he tries to do everything he is called upon to do, he will do nothing well. No one could. No man alive can at once do the same time make responsible decisions for the nation.

Singler Engages Lawyer to Defend Evicted Farmer

William B. Rubin, Once Candidate for Governor, Accepts Job

Walter M. Singler, Appleton, president of the Wisconsin Cooperative Milk Pool, yesterday engaged William B. Rubin, Milwaukee attorney and recent candidate for governor on the Democratic ticket at the primary election, as counsel for Max Cichon, Walworth-co farmer who Tuesday was evicted from his home by deputies after an exchange of gunfire.

Mr. Rubin at Milwaukee yesterday said he agreed to defend Cichon after receiving a wire from Singler in behalf of the pool, which is associated with the Wisconsin Farm Holiday association. Cichon, who is charged with counselling a felony and resisting an officer, was to be in court today for a hearing. Singler was at Elkhorn to attend the hearing.

Cichon was released from jail on a bond signed by Councilman Edward R. Branigan of Beloit. The bond was for $2,500. Cichon had been in the Walworth-co jail since Tuesday, when a small army of officers evicted him and his family from their farm after shooting about 40 bullet holes into the house in an attack at dawn. He had refused to evacuate the farm, despite a forcible action.

Mrs. Cichon also free
Mrs. Cichon was permitted late Wednesday to sign her own bond of $2,500 on a charge of intent to murder. She took her children, Max, Jr., 5, and Virginia, 10, to the home of Herman Schoenbeck, an acquaintance, to await her preliminary hearing Friday.

tions in mind for the army and navy, and plans to submit more executive orders in the future.

As an illustration of his present plan, here are some of the organizations and functions Mr. Hoover proposes to consolidate under the assistant secretary of commerce, for merchant marine.

The United States Shipping Board Merchant Fleet corporation, now an independent agency; the Inland Waterways corporation of the war department; the bureau of lighthouses of the department of commerce; the Naval observatory of the Navy's Bureau of Navigation; the coast and geodetic survey; the hydrographic office of the bureau of navigation; the survey of northern and northern western lakes of the war department; the bureau of navigation and steamboat inspection, the supervisor of New York harbor, now under the army engineers.

Some of the agencies that would come under the new assistant secretary of the interior for education, public health and recreation would include the interior department's office of education, the public health service of the treasury department, the national park service of the interior department, the national parks, cemeteries and monuments now under the war department, the bureau of Indians affairs and the census bureau's division of vital statistics.

In addition, various institutions such as Howard university, Negro college and St. Elizabeth hospital, an institution for the insane in Washington, the Columbian institution for the deaf and others would be grouped under the same authority.

Under the assistant secretary for public works would come such agencies as the bureau of reclamation, the geological survey, the office of the supervising architect of the treasury, the bureau of public roads, various bridge, park and monument commissions, and such agencies under the war department as the Mississippi River commission, and the California Debris commission.

In addition such non-military activities of the army engineers as river and harbor and flood control work, the joint board of engineers for rivers and harbors and the inter-oceanic canal board would come under the same authority.

'Outside' Man Convicted in Prison Break

Faces Maximum of 20 Years for Part in Leavenworth Case

Kansas City—(P)—Harold (Monk) Fontaine, the first of five men brought to trial on charges resulting from the Leavenworth Federal penitentiary break a year ago, was convicted last night by a federal court jury after three hours of deliberation.

The convict and alleged "outside" man in the plot was charged specifically with assault with intent to kill, an offense punishable by a maximum sentence of 20 years. Judge Richard J. Hopkins deferred the passing of sentence.

Government prosecutors named Fontaine as the man responsible for smuggling arms and explosives into the prison for the use of seven convicts who made a spectacular break for freedom last December. They kidnaped Warden Thomas B. White and threatened to blow up the main gate of the penitentiary unless he assured them safe passage through the portal. White was shot in the arm when he made an attempt to wrest a gun from one of the men.

Four of the convicts were slain, and four who were recaptured, now are awaiting trial here.

Fontaine had taken the stand earlier in the day to deny that he was implicated in the conspiracy, which the government alleged was hatched in the penitentiary before he was released. Two purported confessions of his part in the plot were introduced by the prosecution.

Because of his status as an alien, Fontaine was in personal custody of Don McIvor, United States marshal.

Permits Issued For 7 New Homes

Estimated Value of November Building Projects Is $27,500

Of the 23 building permits issued during November by John N. Weiland, building inspector, seven were for seven new residences and garages evaluated at $24,650. He spent two afternoons with the state inspector on general inspections, made four electric inspections and investigated one complaint on the smoke nuisance. In addition to his regular work he spent 12 days working on the city tax roll.

Betty Co-ed Suffers Effects of Depression

Beloit—(P)—It's Betty co-ed who is suffering from the depression, said Dr. Irving Maurer, president of Beloit college, addressing an alumni meeting here last night.

While the total enrollment at Beloit is 2 per cent above the five year level, the number of co-eds has decreased considerably, Dr. Maurer explained.

He explained that many families have kept daughters at home and sent sons to school when they had only enough funds for one.

Christmas Customs from Foreign Lands

In Greece, the "Blessing of the Waters" climaxes the Christmas season on Jan. 6, the Orthodox Christmas Day. In maritime towns, the priest from the church nearest the waterfront, carries a wooden cross to the water's edge, followed by a clergy, monks and whole populace. As he hurls the sacred emblem into the water, youths plunge in from boats to recover it and receive the priest's blessing.

The office will be used for distribution of cotton cloth and sewing of garments. A small quantity of the cloth has been received, the county's order being for 12,000 yards.

It was reported that while membership figures for the entire county are not yet available indications are that the goal of 2,500 members would be reached shortly. The city of Appleton already has turned in more than 1,500 members and the subscriptions were $1,732. Only a part of the county has reported membership figures from that section totalling 400 persons.

Judge Werner One Of Judiciary to Take Voluntary Cut

Circuit Judge Edgar V. Werner, who serves the tenth district comprising Outagamie, Shawano and Langlade-cos, is one of the group of circuit court judges of the state who has accepted a voluntary pay cut of 11.55 per cent. This means a reduction of approximately $924 in the annual salary of $8,000.

Judge Werner was one of the first judges to follow the suggestion of Governor Philip F. LaFollette last July when he urged the judges to accept a voluntary cut. The judges' salaries are fixed by statute and could not be reduced by the state emergency board. At the time the cut was proposed 16 judges accepted. Since then two more have accepted the proposal, making a total of 18 of the 28 judges in the state.

Chief Warns Merchants of Fire Hazards

Asks Store Owners to Co-operate to Prevent Losses During Holidays

Reminders of the danger of fire attendant to the Christmas season were issued to Appleton merchants today by Fire Chief George P. McGillan.

In issuing the warning the chief said that this may be the season of joy and good cheer, but that precautions against fire and its disastrous results should be taken to prevent the season from becoming one of sorrow.

The chief pointed to the hazards in stores at this time of year and urged that all storekeepers when unpacking or packing goods see that excelsior and other materials, as well as empty boxes, are not permitted to clutter up storerooms or the where they may be responsible for starting a fire. He urges that these materials be kept in a safe place, preferably in the basement of the store away from anything which might cause them to ignite.

On Cap Pistols
Another reminder relates to the sale of toy cap pistols, which are now being offered in many stores as part of the equipment of "cow-boy" suits for youngsters. Cap pistols are illegal in Wisconsin, he points out, at this time as well as during the Fourth of July season. The law prohibits their sale is designed for the protection of children who may be poisoned through their use.

While the caps are not sold with the guns they might be procured at a later season, Chief McGillan points out. In any event, it is illegal to sell the pistols and storekeepers are warned not to do so.

Merchants should be especially careful during the holiday season when fire hazards are increased by the presence of large crowds and the use of flimsy materials in decorations, the chief said.

Firemen are ready to co-operate in making stores safe during the holiday season, Chief McGillan said. Regular inspections are made in the business area but soon there will be two a day. The morning inspection will be to locate fire hazards. Later in the day the firemen will make a second inspection to ascertain that the hazards discovered earlier have been eliminated.

Merchants have displayed willingness to co-operate with the firemen, the chief said. They realize that a fire during the Christmas season might force the closing of the store and a large loss through lost sales.

Relief Body Has List Of Indigent Families

Persons who wish to provide Christmas baskets for needy families in Appleton are asked to secure names from the Appleton Welfare and Relief fund. Miss Gladys Stolt, executive secretary of the relief organization, or from the city's dependent list from Joseph E. Schweitzer, public relief commissioner. Both Miss Stolt and Mr. Schweitzer have already received a number of requests for names.

To avoid duplication in the distribution of Christmas baskets, any person presenting a Christmas basket to a needy family is asked to report the name to either organization, so no family will receive two baskets to the exclusion of some other worthy family.

Wisconsin Falls Short in Share of Internal Revenue

Payments Equal only to 1.06 Per Cent of Total in Country

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)
Washington — Wisconsin fell far short of paying its proportion, judging by population, of the national income from internal revenue receipts during the fiscal year 1932, which ended last June 30.

Wisconsin's population of 2,939,006 persons equals 2.39 per cent of the total population of the country, but Wisconsin's internal revenue payments of $16,525,912.65 during the fiscal year 1932 equaled only 1.06 per cent of the total payments of the country.

Only 11 states in the country either equaled or excelled their population percentage by their tax-payment percentage in 1932. These are states with tax returns swollen by tobacco taxes, corporation taxes and similar special taxes.

Of the $16,525,912.65 paid by Wisconsin to Uncle Sam in 1932, $15,156,888.27 was income tax, and $1,369,024.38, miscellaneous taxes. Totals of 4,536,218 pounds of colored, and 210,705,942 pounds of uncolored oleomargarine were produced during the year, a decrease of 47.59 per cent in colored, and 21.65 per cent in uncolored oleo from the 1931 totals.

Fewer Oleo Makers
At the beginning of the fiscal year, 64 oleo-margarine manufacturers were in business. Twelve ceased operating during the year while two new companies were organized, leaving 54 in business at the end of the year, June 30, 1932.

Only one registered manufacturer of adulterated butter and four of process or renovated butter were engaged in business during 1932. No filled cheese was manufactured during the year, the bureau of internal revenue reports.

A total of 78 manufacturers, repackers or importers of playing cards were registered during the year, and manufactured, repacked or imported a total of 61,306,258 packs of cards, compared with 44,139,943 packs in 1931.

Total internal revenue receipts of the nation dropped from $2,428,228,754.22 collected during the fiscal year 1931 to $1,557,729,042.64 in 1932, a decrease of 36 per cent. The decrease in income tax collections alone was $803,283,799.85 or 43 per cent.

Practically none of the provisions of the tax bill passed at the last session of congress are reflected in the 1932 fiscal year returns, although effective June 21, 1932.

Appleton-st Is Almost as Old As City Itself

Has Been Important Business Street Since Infancy of Appleton

History of Appleton-st, one of this city's most important thoroughfares, dates back to the time that Appleton was settled in the early forties. The street has always played an outstanding role in the life of the city, serving both as a business street in the downtown section and as a residential street in the section where homes prevail.

Appleton-st, next to College-ave, is the longest business street in the city. Business buildings line its borders from College-ave south to Lawrence-st and from College-ave north to W. Pacific-st. At about this point the residential district starts on Appleton-st and continues to the city limits and even beyond.

One thing which makes Appleton-st popular for business and which resulted in the growth of the number of firms occupying space along it is the fact that the Chicago and Northwestern railroad passenger station is located on this street. The station was built in the fall of 1882. The fact that for some time this station was the center of travel to and from Appleton resulted in heavier traffic for Appleton-st.

Naturally, new arrivals in the city would start for the business district by walking along Appleton-st. This caused enterprising hotel and inn keepers to recognize the value of the street as a location for their business and soon the street became most popular as a location for hotels.

Even today the street still has two of the city's outstanding hostilities, the Hotel Northern and the Hotel Appleton. A portion of the present Hotel Appleton was built in 1892 by Anton Rieger while the first portion of the Hotel Northern was constructed in 1877. This hotel formerly was known as the Northwestern House.

Perhaps the most famous hotel in the city's history and one that is remembered by Appleton visitors of the earlier days was the Waverly house, which was located on the site of the present Elk's club.

This hotel was built in 1867 and it was four stories high. It was a famous stopping place and people who came here to visit Telulah Springs usually made this hotel their headquarters. The hotel also was noted because it was the first hotel in the world to equip every room with electric lights. The building was destroyed by fire in September, 1895, shortly after it had been remodeled. The first portion of the present Elk's club was constructed in 1912.

Appleton-st, like the city of Appleton, was named in honor of Samuel Appleton, father-in-law of Amos A. Lawrence. Lawrence was the founder of Lawrence college to which Appleton owes its beginning and growth.

Expect Crowd at Breeders' Meet

Annual Meeting of Guernsey Association Scheduled for Saturday

A large crowd of Outagamie-co Guernsey breeders and 4-H club members who raised Guernsey calves are expected to attend the annual meeting and get-together of the Fox River Valley Guernsey Breeders' association at the Appleton Vocational school here Saturday. Arrangements for the event are being made by Gustav A. Sell, county agent, and Stanley Jamison, secretary of the group.

The meeting will open with a business session at 10 o'clock in the morning, at which the election of officers will be held and reports for the last year will be presented. A program for next year also will be discussed. At noon a basket lunch will be served and the afternoon program will start at 1 p. m.

Features on the afternoon program are: stories on prize winning Guernsey calf records; a cow judging demonstration by a team of boys from the Kaukauna 4-H club; stereoscopic views of 4-H club work during the last year; a motion picture on "Forestry and Wild Life"; and a review of the Guernsey association business.

Jury Ponders Verdict

In $1,000 Damage Suit

The case of Harold Klarner, town of Cicero, versus Herman and William Marks, town of Cicero, and Ferdinand H. Kexel, Appleton, for damages of $1,000 went to the jury this morning in municipal court. The jury was still out at noon. Testimony was completed late yesterday before Judge Theodore Berg and the attorneys' arguments and the judge's instructions were given this morning. Klarner claims damages for injuries received in an alleged assault on him by the three men at Drexel's hall in the town of Cicero last October. The three men deny assaulting Klarner and claimed that he voluntarily offered to fight with William Marks and that if he was injured it was during this fight.

Marriage Licenses Drop in November

This is seven less than were issued in November, 1932, when the total was 39. So far this year there have been fewer marriage licenses issued every month than in the same month for 1931. Up to the end of November this year a total of 330 licenses had been issued as compared with 361 at the same time last year.

Dry Agents Raid Soft Drink Parlor

Uno Werner and Rudolph Werner Arraigned in Court at Shawano

Two federal dry agents yesterday noon raided the soft drink parlor of Uno Werner, 516 W. College-ave, and arrested the proprietor and his brother, Rudolph, the bartender. The two Werners were arraigned before United States Court Commissioner C. B. Dillett at Shawano this morning and pleaded not guilty of sale and possession of whisky, alcohol and beer. They were bound over to the January term of federal court at Milwaukee and released under bonds of $500 each.

One of the dry agents walked in on the place shortly before noon and ordered a drink. He was followed a few minutes later by his companion. After getting the drinks the agents informed the owner who they were and started to search the place. A gallon of alcohol, a small quantity of whisky in a pint bottle, and a small quantity of beer was found, the agents alleged.

England, France Discuss Methods Of Paying Debts

next week, and thereby is reflecting the views of the government. Approval Expected. After the premier and M. Germain-Martin had made their explanations before the committee, the opinion was expressed in the chamber. Lobbes that M. Herriot will get the chamber's approval of payment of the December installment provided he receives formal assurance from the United States that negotiations for reconsideration of the debt structure will begin before the next payment is due in June.

A communique issued by the committee said the premier had explained that the matter of the debt is at once a diplomatic problem and a financial problem. He gave the history of the issue from the ratification of the Mellon-Berenger accord up to the negotiation of the Lausanne agreement relieving Germany of the bulk of reparations payments.

SEEK AGREEMENT

London.—(9)—It was learned officially today that the American and British governments now are negotiating to find methods whereby the British war debt payment due on Dec. 15 can be made.

An important cabinet meeting will be held early next week, after Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald returns from Geneva, to make the final decisions regarding the payment due Thursday. Previous unofficial reports of this cabinet meeting said it would draft a note to urge speedy revision of the war debt settlement after this month's payment of $90,550,000.

Thus was marked the beginning of a new phase of the debt problem which responsible quarters here said they believed would help to take the controversy out of the realm of "international squabbling." Political circles professed profound disappointment at the American refusal to postpone the December payment.

Nevertheless it appeared the government had quickly seized upon what it regarded as the fundamental points of the Anglo-American debt problem. It was reasoned that the most essential point of the British note was the request for a revision of the whole debt question, and that the American reply virtually granted this.

The action government appeared to be prepared for a broadside of criticism because it was not insisting upon the French debt payment to the British in March. But the cabinet was believed to be preparing likewise to demand the action taken by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain in Paris.

The government's position appeared to be that the policy was aimed to save the Lausanne reparations agreement, which, scaled down German payments, and thus protect the progress Europe has made toward a final settlement of those inter-governmental obligations which were a heritage of the World war.

Official quarters emphatically discounted reports and predictions in the press here that American insistence on the December payment necessarily meant "squashing" the Lausanne agreement.

While the consensus in political and financial quarters today was that Great Britain intends to pay and that the situation already was being discounted on the exchange, it is obviously a matter which the cabinet must finally consider before a definite announcement can be forthcoming.

CONGRESS WAITING

Washington.—(9)—A congress resolute in its determination that Europe shall pay looked to Great Britain today for what that nation might propose before writing a willingness to accept any new form of war debt payments as suggested by Secretary Stimson.

In advising British that the Dec. 15 installment must be met, Secretary Stimson said "we would be willing to consider any reasonable suggestions" from that government which would make it easier to remit the $95,550,000 due then. Soon after the United States' note to Great Britain was made public last night, the secretary of state handed to Ambassador Paul Claudet of the French government's reply to the Senate French appeal for a moratorium extending to 1934.

While its contents were not made public, it was taken, "granted that the French also were asked to pay up, but whether that communication contained any of the payment suggestions in the British note was problematical in view of different circumstances surrounding the French financial position.

Hoover's proposal that payment be made by depositing sterling in England to be guaranteed as to dollar value, and Stimson's note last night disclosed that "further informal suggestions" had been made of "methods of minimizing" exchange difficulties.

World Study Issues. The secretary said Mr. Hoover was prepared "through whatever agency may seem appropriate" to study in cooperation with Great Britain the whole question of debt, linking it with factors involved in world trade recovery, disarmament and the possibility of opening up new American markets in exchange for debt payments.

Few congressional leaders would comment today on the latest Stimson note, pending definite proposals from the English. Nevertheless, in Democratic circles there were renewed expressions that congress had no intentions of revising the foreign obligations.

Amputates Own Toes; Saw Teeth Are Substitutes

St. Paul, Minn.—(9)—Out of the secluded north woods where only such a thing could happen came the story today of a Finnish shacker who uses saw teeth for toes.

Fred Carr, himself a shacker, vouchers for the story. Carr said they found the Finn, trapped by a fallen tree and badly frozen. They took him to a hospital by dog team and there doctors insisted on amputating his legs.

The Finn, said Carr, refused permission for the operation and stole away from the hospital back to his woodland shack. There his toes became infected and he amputated them himself. The stumps healed up, Carr said, and the Finn is back on his trapping route, with a small section of a cross cut saw inserted in each foot. The blunt teeth serve as toes for the Finn, Carr explained.

Game Birds Can't Be in Storage After Tomorrow

Severe Penalties if Federal Statutes are Broken, Say Wardens

All ducks and upland game birds, such as prairie chickens, grouse, and pheasant, which have been kept in storage must be removed before midnight of Dec. 10, game wardens point out. After that date the owners of meat markets and cold storage plants, who have been accommodating their friends by storing their game, as well as the actual owners of the game, will be liable to severe penalties if any game is found on the premises. This is required by a federal statute, and state authorities have no leeway in its enforcement. The daily bag limit is also the possession limit, except in the case of upland game birds where an increase has been allowed by the conservation commission, but after Dec. 10 no game birds whatever may be held.

The open season on upland game birds closed Oct. 5, so that it has been illegal to have any such birds in possession for some weeks past. The open season on ducks—closed Dec. 1, and with the 15 days grace granted by the federal statute, possession of game birds of any kind becomes illegal at midnight of Saturday.

The federal statute applies only to the migratory birds. The state conservation commission has ruled that venison may be kept in storage for 30 days after the close of the hunting season. After Dec. 30 owners of venison will undoubtedly be permitted to retain it at their residences but the original tag must be affixed to the carcass at all times, until it has been entirely consumed.

The state statute also prohibits the serving or giving of game dinners by hotels, inns, restaurants, clubs and boarding houses to their guests. The only exception has been made in the case of rabbit lunches, which, a ruling of the department permits. Fresh lunches are included in the ban and the penalties for violation are severe, ranging from a minimum of $200 to a maximum of $500, or by imprisonment of not less than nine months or more than twelve, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Fraternities Study Large Lot Purchases

Operating expenses of the Lawrence college fraternities will be curtailed to some extent if a plan being considered by the fraternity heads is adopted. The plan is to do buying through the college purchasing department. Commercial necessities of the fraternities could be bought cheaper in large lots, it is pointed out.

SERVICES FOR EARLIER

Services at Mount Olive Lutheran church will be held 15 minutes earlier next Sunday morning because the Rev. R. E. Ziesemer will leave at the close of the morning worship for Kenosha, where he is scheduled to speak at 7:30 in the evening at Friedens Lutheran church. The Rev. C. H. Buenger is observing his thirtieth anniversary as pastor of the Kenosha parish.

Prepare for Better Times, Ebling Urges

Man With Vision Will Benefit First, Merchants Are Told

The man with vision is the one who will benefit with the return of the prosperous era, declared Claude O. Ebling, Rhinelander, official of the Soo Line Railway Co., in an address yesterday noon at the first of a series of four forum dinner meetings sponsored by the Appleton Chamber of Commerce. The meeting was held at Conway hotel and members of the Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions and Optimists clubs attended.

Mr. Ebling declared that the present depression was forecast by the downward trend in farm prices shortly before the big crash that precipitated the crisis. He declared that charts show that business always follows the trend of farm prices, because when the farmer had money to spend, then business in general was better.

He declared that just as surely as the lowering farm prices forecast the present crisis, so the rising prices of today are foretelling the return of prosperity.

"Of course, we need look for prosperity to return the same as it disappeared," Mr. Ebling said. "Our business life is known to run in cycles of about 15 years, with seven years of good times and then seven years of bad times. But the good times cannot come all at once. It's the same as a toboggan slide. You slide swiftly down the steep side of the hill and then climb slowly to the top, using the less steep side."

MUST DO BEST

Mr. Ebling scored business men who are letting some of their most valuable men go now just when they should be "building up" their organizations to be in readiness for the better times ahead. He said the depression hasn't hurt America except to again prove that the Americans can really fight when there is necessity.

"We never do our best until we get right down to work," he said. "And we don't get down to work until we are forced to. That force is here right now. I don't believe there is a business man here today who can say he has done his best during the last five years. If we all do our best we cannot help but survive and prosper."

As examples of the good results of the depression, Mr. Ebling cited the various uses that have been found for the surplus of goods and by-products which have been found available in other fields from materials that formerly were wasted. He pointed to the high price of eggs and to the slight gains in grain prices as evidences of returning prosperity, and urged business men to be alert and look ahead to the future, because they would then be assured of prosperity.

Oil Lamps Lighted Muddy Streets in Early Appleton

Forerunners of the ornamental street lights installed this fall on Superior, Appleton and Washington-sts, were a few old fashioned oil lamps, set on posts at a few of the most important corners. As soon as gas lighting was perfected the system was adopted by Appleton and one of the familiar sights of the era was the workers who daily were charged with lighting the lamps in the evening and extinguishing them in the morning.

Dates when gas lights were first installed in Appleton were not available but it is known that they were abolished about 1932 when the first suspended center lights, of the carbon arc variety, were introduced. This type of street lighting remained in use in Appleton until 1902 when the present electric light system was installed. At the time of the installation of the present system there was much debate about a new system being tried at Fond du Lac. Hugh towers, supporting big clusters of gas lamps, were erected at six or seven strategic points, and these lamps were supposed to cast enough light to light all the streets of the entire city. Evidently this system didn't meet with much favor because it was soon abolished.

The first ornamental lighting sys-

India Unprepared For Independence

So Says Englishman in Address to Students at Lawrence

"India is still in a period where it would be left in a precarious position if given absolute independence by England," Leonard Greatwood, an Englishman and graduate student of Northwestern university, Evanston, Ill., told Lawrence college students at convocation Friday morning. Mr. Greatwood presented the affirmative side of the debate question which is "Resolved that India should remain part of the British empire." The negative side will be presented in a talk by V. Mathuramuthy, an Indian and also a student at Northwestern university, at the Monday morning convocation.

Mr. Greatwood reviewed the history and told how it came to be under the control of England. Trade relations were opened with that country by England about 1600 by the East India company. India was at this time drifting into a condition of chaos and anarchy and was taken under the control of England to save it such a condition, he said.

He talked of the depressed classes and of the "untouchables," who are striving for ordinary rights. Other factions which are opposed to each other religiously and politically are also having strife. The depressed classes have no representation in the Congress party, which is the strongest opposition to the British rule, he said. There are other parties that desire England to retain present connections. India is not yet ready for independent self-government, he concluded.

Mercury Drops To 6 Below for New Low Record

Break in Frigid Blast Due To Arrive With Warm Winds Saturday

Heating plants were worked overtime last night and today as the cold wave which struck this section of the state night before last continued to grow in severity. icy winds last night sent the mercury sagging to 6 degrees below zero, setting a new low temperature record for the winter season. Yesterday morning the mercury registered 3 degrees below.

Shop and office employees darted to work this morning with hands over noses or ears as the icy wind whipped down College-ave. Those who were fortunate enough to remain at home, huddled around stoves and registers.

Filling station attendants were busier today than yesterday. Many cars were towed with frozen radiators, and alcohol was vented in large quantities as motorists batted King Winter.

Furnaces Loaded

Furnaces were loaded to the brim last night as householders rapidly switched on their radiators in response to the frigid dropping mercury.

Lake Winnebago and the Fox river were completely covered with ice from four to eight inches thick this morning in the first real freeze-up of the season. Ice fishermen were preparing to move onto the lake this weekend with their shanties and other paraphernalia.

The cold weather of the past two days has resulted in no large increase in transients applying at Outagamie-co jail for lodging, according to Sheriff John Lappen. In the eight days since Dec. 1, a total of 74 transients have been given lodging and breakfast. Last year during the early days of December, the number applying for lodging was considerably greater. Sheriff Lappen said he believes that the new county policy, by which the county pays towns, cities or villages 15 cents for each transient which the municipality gives lodging and breakfast, has caused this reduction. He said various districts are more willing to extend lodging to transients and they, therefore, are not being sent to the county jail.

On Dec. 1, eight men were given lodging: Dec. 2, nine; Dec. 3, eight; Dec. 4, five; Dec. 5, 12; Dec. 6, 12; Dec. 7, 13; and Dec. 8, 10.

Enjoyed Warm Weather

A year ago this vicinity was enjoying considerably warmer weather, but three inches of snow had been recorded on the preceding night. At 6 o'clock on the morning of Dec. 9, 1931, the mercury registered 10 above zero, and at noon it was 33 degrees above.

On the same day in 1930, however, this vicinity experienced one of the warmest winter days in many years. At 6 o'clock in the morning the mercury registered 32 degrees above zero, and by noon it had skyrocketed to 56 degrees above. There had been a very light snow fall, but most of it had disappeared the night before. On the previous day, freezing temperatures had been recorded, the reading at 6 o'clock that morning being 22 degrees above zero. At noon the mercury had registered 29 degrees above.

A break in the frigid blast is due to arrive by tomorrow, the weatherman says in his daily forecast. His predictions read as follows: "Generally fair and continued cold tonight, except slightly warmer in extreme northwest; increasing cloudiness and slowly rising temperature Saturday, probably snow by afternoon or night."

Winds were still shifting from the northwest this morning, but were expected to shift to the south and southwest by Saturday morning. If the wind shifts, it will be a good indication that warmer weather is on the way.

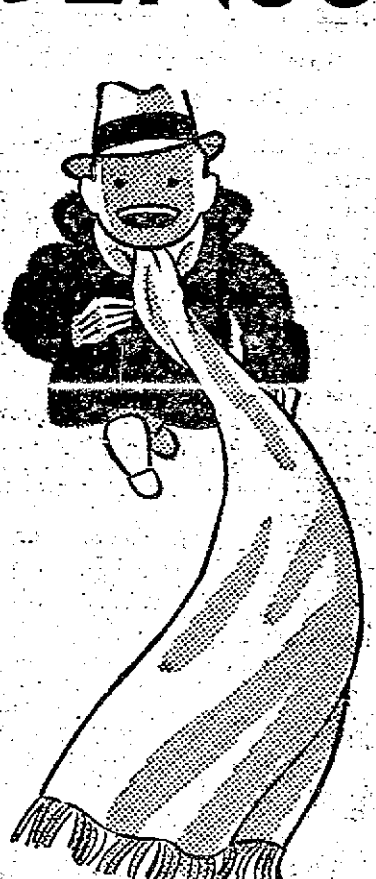

At noon Friday the mercury registered one degree above zero. Unofficial thermometers in various sections of the city, at 6 o'clock this morning registered from 10 to 12 below zero.

Pay Rolls and Employment in City Increase

Weekly Pay Total Up 6.4 Per Cent Here, Commission Reports

Appleton is one of 19 Wisconsin cities which showed increases in both employment and pay rolls last Sept. 15 to Oct. 15, according to a report of the Wisconsin Industrial Commission. Labor statistics of 36 Appleton industrial plants were included in compiling the report.

The number of employees on pay rolls in this city increased from 2,886 on Sept. 15 to 2,414 on Oct. 15, a rise of 8 per cent, the commission reports. The aggregate weekly pay roll increased from $36,108 on Sept. 15 to $38,408 on Oct. 15, a rise of 6.4 per cent.

The numbers of total employment and of aggregate total pay roll in manufacturing plants in this city, reveal that in Appleton there was an increase of 1.3 per cent on Oct. 15 compared to the same date in September. On Oct. 15 it was 83.3 per cent compared to 82 per cent on Sept. 15 and 80 per cent on Aug. 15. The reports also shows that the average per capita weekly earnings on Oct. 15 were $15.95.

Pay Rolls Rise

Reports compiled from 21 plants at Neenah and Menasha show a decrease of 2.4 per cent in the number of employees, but an increase of 2.3 per cent in pay roll. On Oct. 15 these plants employed 4,040 people compared to 4,141 reported on Sept. 15. The total pay roll on Oct. 15 was $73,041 compared to $71,033 on Sept. 15. The average per capita weekly earnings on Oct. 15 was $18.08 or $2.17 higher than that of Appleton plants.

The aggregate amount of Wisconsin factory pay rolls has increased each month since last July, the commission reports. Between Sept. 15 and Oct. 15 total pay rolls increased 4.9 per cent as compared with a medium average increase of 3.6 per cent shown by records for the years 1922-1929.

Total factory employment was pared down by 2.4 per cent between Sept. 15 and Oct. 15. The average seasonal decline for this monthly period of the years 1922-1929 is only 0.3 per cent.

Employment Off

In 31 identical cities of the state a total of 915 factories had 81,825 employees on Oct. 15 as compared with 81,566 on Sept. 15. Total factory pay rolls gained in 26 of 31 of the principal industrial cities of the state between that period. All industry groups of factory employment in the state excepting the food group, increased total pay rolls between that period.

Total factory employment in Wisconsin on Oct. 15 was reduced by 14.4 per cent from October a year ago and by 25.6 per cent from October of two years ago. Corresponding pay rolls were reduced by 25.6 per cent from October a year ago and by 46.2 per cent from the same month in 1930.

A slight increase in total clerical employment and aggregate pay rolls in identical factories in the state is shown for both September, and October in contrast with successive monthly losses for many previous months.

No More Piles

How to End Terrible Agony Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands of Pile sufferers do not know that the cause of Piles is internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

That is the scientific truth about Piles—the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give permanent relief, why cutting does not remove the cause.

Your itching, bleeding or protruding Piles will only go when you actually remove the cause—and not one minute before. External treatments can't do this—an internal medicine should be used. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts.

HEM-ROID has such a wonderful record of success in even the most stubborn cases that Schlintz Bros. and all good druggists advise every sufferer to get a bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets today. They must end your Pile agony or money back.—Adv.

THE THIRD BATTLE OF THE MARNE

Anyone looking for an easy job better not join up with the Oklahoma National Guard, not while the Honorable Bill (Alfalfa) Murray has boots in his closet, spurs on his wall, and is moved by martial music.

General Alfalfa Bill's wild charge into the oil fields during the early part of his term now belongs to somber history along with the Charge of the Six Hundred, as does his defiant campaign against arrogant wealth in the form of a toll bridge which contemptuously sought to close the free span over Oklahoma's Rhine, the Red river.

In each of these instances General Alfalfa Bill actually inspected his horse-pistol, smelled the cartridges, and bit his loose teeth into the lead. No mere staff officer was he in some safe cave twenty feet underground with a telegraph operator transmitting directions. Out on the firing line he stood where the bullets, even though they didn't whiz, were the thickest, and all ready to be started on their murderous course. And like the fire-engine horse of fame and story he has just undertaken his third great campaign.

It seems that a friend of Alfalfa, one Zachary Miller, owner of the famous 101 Ranch circus, found himself all twisted up in the toils of the law over the trifling matter of refusing, or just plain overlooking, to obey a court order concerning the personal affair of alimony. Alfalfa snorts at court orders, and when they are aimed at his friends, he tears into official action.

Finding Miller in jail for contempt of court he issued a pardon. But the sheriff, taking counsel from the judge, and probably being a Republican to boot, refused to class the pardon higher than a hand-bill fluttering in an October breeze. The jail doors stood shut.

Then indeed did the Oklahoma state house tremble as the mighty Alfalfa pounded desks and kicked out cuspidors. Fuming, raging, cussing, spitting, Alfalfa tramped up and down his office planning action. All at once he gazed upon the spurned pardon reposing upon a mahogany desk that had cost the taxpayers of Oklahoma plenty. He smiled. Everything became clear to him now. He understood it all. What a faux pas his secretary had made!

There was his signature right above the word "governor." He quickly erased the official title and wrote in its stead "Commander-in-chief of the State Militia."

When the amended pardon was turned over to the sheriff the jail doors opened quickly and without a squeak. Sheriffs in Oklahoma know what it means when Alfalfa's drooping mustache takes on the Kaiser bristle. With Alfalfa as a candidate, an officeholder, that is a mere man, the humblest may argue, criticize or expostulate. With Alfalfa as a military leader the citizens of Oklahoma understand that "theirs is but to do or die."

MOTHERHOOD

Lady Nancy Astor's recent remark that motherhood is "a lot of tommyrot" seems destined to become a classic similar to Henry Ford's famous statement about history being bunk.

Herself a mother of five children, Lady Astor asserts that the "sentimental slush" about mothers is "just too sickening." Mothers are not necessarily saints, and it irks her to find them put on saints' pedestals.

This attitude, in a land which makes an annual event of Mother's Day and which can be moved to tears by any ninth-rate song about mothers, seems close to outright heresy. But perhaps we would come closer to giving mother the kind of tribute that is her due if we adopted a little of Lady Astor's unsentimental common sense on the subject.

Motherhood can be all that the most extravagant rhapsodists say it is; but the mother in question has to learn it.

A woman who rushes off to the divorce court at the slightest excuse, depriving her children of a normal home-life and subordinating their needs to her own desire for freedom, hardly belongs on the traditional pedestal.

A woman who devotes most of her time to club work, bridge parties and golf and lets a nurse or governess look after her children through their most impressionable years has hardly put her children very deeply in debt to her.

A woman who nags and frets so constantly that her children are glad to stay away from home as much as possible, as soon as they reach their teens, has not exactly qualified for the role of saint.

Motherhood can be all that our sentimental traditions say; it can also be the exact opposite. It's up to each individual mother.

MISREPRESENTING THE KING

We have sometimes called attention to the misconception of American purposes, occasionally wild misstatement or distortion of fact, appearing in foreign journals.

This time it is our own shoe that pinches.

After a march of the unemployed in London awhile ago, apparently little different from similar marches in our big cities, two photographs appeared in a leading American newspaper, to the publication of which the English have made a loud and emphatic protest.

One picture showed a great crowd milling around Buckingham Palace, the London residence of the king, and was headed, "Stormed by Thousands in New Riot." According to the London Times, slow, sober and dependable, "It was a photograph taken about four years ago, when London turned out to welcome the king on his return after a long and serious illness."

The other picture showed the king in an open carriage while the poor with outstretched hands appealed to him for aid and sustenance, and it was so described in the writeup appearing with it.

"Actually," declares the Times, "it is a picture of the traditional scene on Derby Day at Epsom Downs of the gypsies running beside the royal carriage in quest of the king's coin," apparently one of those customs which are clung to so faithfully under monarchical forms.

The English are justified at becoming wrothy at instances of this nature. Haste accounts for most of the errors appearing in daily newspapers but the substitution of pictures several years of age, just to have a photograph with the news story, is pushing the matter of journalistic license too far.

Yet these instances show the marked limitation of a photograph in comparison with the printed word, for the picture of a gala event, the cheering multitude in welcoming attitude can be made into a communistic riot by merely altering the heading; and the happy performance of a custom centuries old may be immediately transformed in the same manner into the painful story of the unfed begging for bread.

The printed word is often called cold. But from this happening we may see that if it does not radiate warmth it is at least precise.

PROSPERITY IN SHIRT TAILS

An Englishman has conceived the brilliant idea that the British textile industry could be revived to full and prosperous activity if but six inches could be added to the shirt of every Hindu in India.

Not much, just six inches to the tail of their shirts, but sufficient to speed up the looms in the cotton mills and bring smiles to the cotton growers.

The Hindu may have fixed ideas as to the length of his shirt and is not likely to accede to this suggestion of those who would ride back to prosperity on the tail of it, any more than could the American woman be induced to revert to the Gay Nineties skirts for the purpose of booming the silk and the cleaning and dyeing industries.

Such a suggestion is unsound economically and anthropologically, being more in the nature of wishful thinking of which the world now has an overabundant supply.

In it, however, is the kernel of sound philosophy. With a little here and a little there, trifles gain mighty power and can be piled up under intelligent direction. "A little snow, tumbled about, anon becomes a mountain" is a truth beyond question, though lacking in economic value. Yet could mankind direct the snowflakes into tropical India, much more than six inches of additional cotton would be required to cover Hindu shanks.

It is a question of the proper and intelligent direction of human effort, with less thought given perhaps to the grandiose things of life and more to its essentials, thinking of inches rather than of miles, and the world will again be on its way with prosperity all wrapped up in longer shirt tails, ready for delivery.

AFTERMATH OF REBELLION

The lifting of the usual censorship allows us at least to see in retrospect some of the realities of the great rebellion which recently ended in Brazil. Though, fortunately for the national cause, the union has triumphed over the State Sao Paulo, it is a heavy price that Brazil, and particularly the Paulistas, have paid for civil war. It is reported that the youth of Sao Paulo were decimated in the battles which the state forces fought in their efforts to hold back the iron ring that encircled their proud city. The cost in money can eventually be made up, but the loss of its young men is irreparable for this generation. Also defeat has inevitably left a deep bitterness in the hearts of those who have fallen—a wound in the spirit that will be slow to heal.

In accordance with South American custom, the leaders of the revolt and their active sympathizers are to be exiled from the country. This time they are to be sent not to the lonely island of Fernando Noronha as usual, but to Europe. A distinguished group of Brazilians—soldiers, editors and politicians—will go to join the numerous company of Latin-American expatriates in Europe. For Paris, which is concerned only with differences of opinion among its own citizens

READING the sport pages yesterday was a very discouraging thing, indeed. . . . noticed where Olin Dutra was shooting a 70 to lead in medal honors at the San Francisco open golf tournament. . . . saw where the Notre Dame team was suffering from the heat on its trip west. . . . that West Virginia, down south, sub, was to hang up the Missouri to play football next fall. . . . all that fair-weather and warmth business. . . . ersus. . . . and outside, the thermometer was struggling desperately to get above zero. . . . papers oughta be barred from printing stuff like that. . . . it is all very discouraging to we human beings. . . .

Curiosity got the better of Wild Bill the other day and he took home a jig-saw puzzle to work on. After he'd been at it for three hours, we came home to find him a complete wreck. He had gnawed a leg off the table, eaten three pieces of the puzzle and had the parts liberally strewn around the room. It developed that W. B. not only purchased one puzzle but he picked up another somewhere and somehow got them mixed together. He's resting better today.

For the benefit of Packer addicts (some of whom take the matter pretty seriously) may we point out that the Green Bay boys do deserve the championship since they've won nearly as many games as the Bears and Spartans combined.

Since they've lost more games, though, they're through. Until the tie game rule is amended to give a half-game won and a half-game lost to each of the tying teams, the situation remains as is. All the Packer fans need is a philosophy to help carry them through defeats. It's all a part of the business.

Notre Dame, handicapped by a bad habit of weakening as it approaches the opponent's fifteen yard line, may still crash loose and smack down U. S. C. tomorrow. Teams using the Rockne stuff have made life miserable for U. S. C. this year and almost spoiled the Sunshine Boys' spotless record. But U. S. C. is tough, particularly against Notre Dame.

The move for beer is slightly depressed by the zero wind whistling about. Now the movement is trending toward what did that guy call 'em—oh yeah, Tom and Jerry.

Prof Einstein is peeved because he's had to undergo questioning before being allowed to enter America. Tsk, tsk, professor, you should try to borrow a thousand bucks from any American bank. THEN see what happens. Questions, huh!

Now You Know What You're Like!

A gent writes to a Chicago Newspaper: "Mayor Dool and Senator LaFollette are trying to destroy Illinois. Wisconsin is more foreign than Canada. Why does Illinois allow it to drive Illinois milk out of the Chicago market. . . ."

Just Folks

THE FAMILY

When everything was going well upon their several ways they went
And at the table many a day were voices raised in argument

For undisturbed by grief or care so curious
Is the human mind
That it will took on those it loves the slightest trace or fault to find.

Words flew at times across the board. Harsh charges no one meant were flung.
"Tut, tut," the gentle mother said. "We talked not so when we were young."
What one uttered the next denied. Often a wordy feud arose.
Within the sheltering walls of home between the stubborn eyes and nose.

But when the skies above were black and trouble came to pay a call
The family rose united to share the cares of one and all.

Small differences were forgot, face front unto their cause they stood,
And in the joy of kinship true they labored for the common good.

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Friday, Dec. 13, 1907

At the meeting of the Equitable Fraternal Union the previous night the following officers were elected: Henry H. Thiel, president; W. F. Winsley, vice president; W. E. Montgomery, secretary; R. M. Falk, treasurer; Mrs. L. Chandler, advisor; Henry Fiedler, warden; William Peters, guard; and George Brook, trustee.

Large consignments of Christmas trees had been arriving in Appleton during the past few days and were being displayed in front of the various stores.

The annual football banquet at Lawrence university was to be held that night at the Ritter hotel, over 150 tickets having been sold for the event.

Members of the J. C. club met the previous evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Hecker, Union-st.

J. F. Nicoulin, who had been visiting in Appleton for two weeks at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Bernard, 781 Washington-st., left that night for his home at Algona, Iowa.

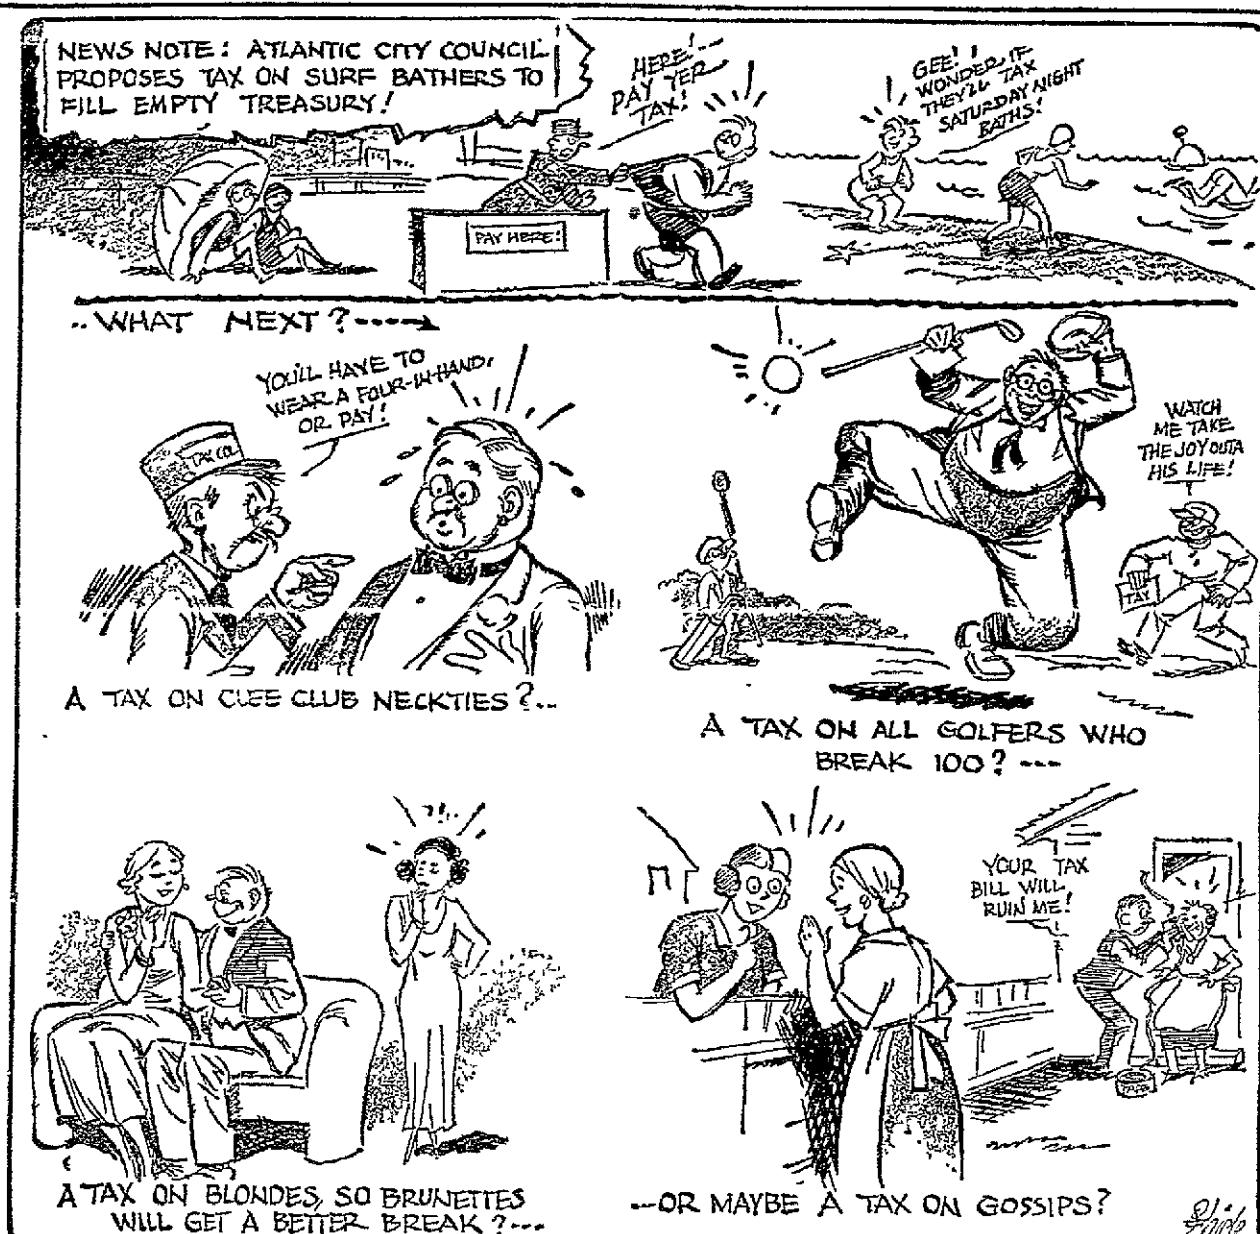

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Weiland had left for Grand Rapids, Mich., where they were to make their future home.

It is estimated that between ten and twenty million meteorites strikes the earth's surface every day.

and not Portuguese Lisbon, will receive most of them. Yet all the charms of Paris and its impersonal hospitality to the dissenters of the earth will not be able to comfort the new exiles. They will long for the swish of palms, as they walk beneath the leafless trees along the boulevards. They will languish for the coffee of their own cafes and clubs—black and rich and steaming with an aroma so foreign to the palid concoction of the French. The Brazilians have a word for homesickness—saudades—which expresses a more poignant nostalgia than afflicts the generality of men absent from their native birth. Paris will hold much of it this winter.—New York Herald-Tribune.

BOW-LEGS AND KNOCK-KNEES

Knock-knee in infants or young children is usually a moderate deformity and does not call for any special treatment. If the ankles are separated by less than two inches when the child stands erect with knees together, it is sufficient to put lifts on the inner borders of soles and heels of the shoes, to raise the feet up along the inner border and throw the weight upon the outer borders of the feet. These lifts should be only 4-inch thick. The normal, strong position of the feet in standing or walking is always rather that the bow-legged type. A bow-legged person walks on the outer borders of the feet.

Another help in correcting moderate knock-knee in childhood is toeing in. The child should be taught to toe in when standing or walking or running, and never permitted to toe out, sitting, standing or walking.

For either bow-leg or knock-knee in childhood all forms of outdoor exercise or play are beneficial, particularly bicycle, velocipede or pushmobile riding, pony riding, hop and skip, skip the rope, all games in which the child runs or dodges about, and all forms of dancing. The admonition about toeing in holds for all these exercises, especially for knock-knee. It is less needed where the condition is bow-leggedness.

Knock-knee is a manifestation of rickets in most cases, tho in moderate cases as above mentioned the deformity is merely a static one, like pronated feet ("weak ankles") or falling arches. Plenty of exposure of the naked skin to direct sunlight, and an adequate Vitamin-D ration (cod liver oil, yolk of egg, fresh milk, butter, cream) in the first year of life, therefore tend to prevent knock-knee.

Everything said about knock-knee applies as well to bow-leg, except the fitting of lifts on the shoes.

Suitable braces, fitted and applied and constantly supervised by the physician, are a help in the correction of many cases of knock-knee and bow-leg in young children. It is futile, however, to expect any appliance or mechanical contrivance to alter the shape of the bones in the legs after the age of six years. Nothing short of an operation on the bent bone or bones will correct knock-knee or bow-leg in a person over six years of age. If any brace or gadget would or could remedy such deformities in persons over the age of six years, physicians, I mean reputable physicians, would be happy to recommend or use them. No good doctor likes to do an operation for the correction of bow-leg or knock-knee; indeed, few reliable surgeons will consider the operation unless the deformity is quite pronounced and a real impediment. The scandal that arose when an unlicensed practitioner attempted some such operation and by his crude bungling caused the loss of the victim's legs, should not deter anybody from seeking surgical relief for such deformity; it should merely emphasize the importance of making sure of the doctor's or specialist's standing before you submit to his treatment. If you don't know how to determine any doctor's or specialist's standing, why, that's just too bad. If your town is not too backward there should be a public information bureau maintained by the local county medical society and listed in the telephone directory.

The Tynymites

By Hal Cochran

ON went the carriage with the king, said Windy, "That's a funny thing. They wouldn't let us see him. Gee, that doesn't seem just right."

"Imagine sleeping on a ride," another Tyny promptly cried. "I'll bet you anything the king stayed up late last night."

"Oh, no!" replied the hotsytot. "I see you'll have to learn a lot about this little village. Why, the king never stays up late."

"Where the sun sinks, so does he. He sinks into his bed, you see. Some other day you'll see him. In the meantime you must wait."

"The think that makes him drowsy, boys, is all the meals that he enjoys. Why, when he's at the table it is hard to make him stop."

"He'll eat and eat and eat some more. No one knows what he does it for. I've often seen him stuff himself until he took a flop."

"Where the sun sinks, so does he. He sinks into his bed, you see. Some other day you'll see him. In the meantime you must wait."

"Just be real nice to them and they will be real glad you've come today. Don't try to scare them, Tynymites, 'cause that will start a row."

And then the hotsytot yelled, "Hey, some of you boys come over this way. I've found some new friends you will like. You'll find them very kind."

"Sure, come ahead," wee Scouty cried. "Run up and sit right by my side." Then several of the tots came up and answered, "We don't mind."

Soon Scouty had them on his knee. He said, "Now listen, tots, to me. I'll tell you lots of stories 'bout the things that I have done."

"I've traveled here and traveled there. In fact, I've traveled everywhere. But visiting you little tots is really the most fun."

A Bystander In Washington

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington — Although, after a period of some 30 years in the senate, Reed Smoot of Utah, dean of that body and now past 70, finds himself in that group dubbed "lame ducks," there is little indication that it weighs so heavily on him.

The slim, soft-spoken Utah senator was among the first arrivals in the capital for the coming short session of congress. Almost immediately he busied himself with getting ready for that event.

His voice, as on many previous congressional eves, was heard loud and often as to what should be done in the coming few months. It was much as if he were "in" for another six-year senate stay.

Not Discredited
Perhaps one reason for Smoot's cheerfulness lies in the fact that it is generally conceded his defeat in the democratic sweep of November 6th left him by no means discredited.

It just couldn't be helped.
The veteran senator's state and his candidacy for reelection were objects of special concern to the republicans in the campaign. It will be remembered that practically every one of the "big guns" at one time or another was trained on the Utah electorate.

President Hoover delivered one of his major speeches there, in which he said of Smoot: "He knows more of the workings of our government than any other living American."

Vice President Curtis invaded Utah, as did Secretaries Hyde, Mills, Wilbur and any number of the lesser lights—all in vain.

A Deeper Reason
But perhaps there is a deeper reason why Senator Smoot shows no sign of depression at his defeat. Of all the "lame ducks" on capitol hill perhaps no one, from President Hoover on down the line, has a more safe sanctuary, whether it be in nor out of the government, where he may turn than has Smoot.

That sanctuary is the Mormon church, of which he is one of the twelve apostles, who under the first presidency, guide the spiritual affairs of that organization.

The same religion, one of the principal things in his life.

Barbs

The cigar industry plans a wide survey to determine if its product is losing favor. Possibly the experts will find someone's just dropped an "L."

A scientist says, "conceit is a form of insanity. That's going to make it hard for a lot of folks to get insurance."

A murderer, sought 13 years in France, revealed in a deathbed confession he had been a trusted member of the police service all of that time. If "Pretty Boy" Floyd the Oklahoma outlaw, wants security and a pension in his old age he might well consider a job on the force.

That photographer who snapped a picture of "Jimmy" Walker on a French golf course while New York's ex-mayor shouted protests proved he was pretty good at brassie shots himself.

The reason some folks can't save money for a rainy day is that they blow in too much on wet nights.

The girl who loudly insists the man she marries must be brave is pretty sure to get that sort—if any.

The business magnate who condemns whistling on the job makes it a bit tough for the football referees and traffic cops.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY WILLIAM GAINES

New York—Perhaps you remember William S. Brown as the manager of a hotel near Times square who offered free rooms to "white collar" victims of the depression. Unemployed men could pay their bills when they got jobs.

Well, the working out of the plan has not diminished Brown's faith in mankind. He still believes that 90 per cent of the needy are honest.

Six thousand applications for lodging flooded in after he made his proposal. He had available space for only 90. These he selected from unfortunate actors, architects, business folks and such.

Since October 1, four have got jobs and paid Mr. Brown in full. Several, who found it possible to get rooms elsewhere, voluntarily withdrew from the hotel to make space for others who couldn't find another roof.

Brown wishes the same thing could be done in every hotel which has an unused surplus of rooms—until the recovery is well under way.

The plight of the white collar worker, whose pride restrains him from seeking the shelter of charitable organizations, was sufficient to move this manager. But even from a purely business standpoint, he feels, it is better for a hotel man to gamble on future payments than to let his rooms stand vacant.

Substantial references were required of the applicants. But at least one gentleman, in a hurry for relief, waived the formality of supplying them.

He simply wired to the hotel that he was on his way from the west coast after hearing of the offer, so the manager should reserve a room for him.

Artists Must Eat
Needy artists reassembled their canvases on the sidewalks of Washington square, for a bazaar similar to the one they held when the weather was warm.

But this time the market was short on novelty and color, there weren't so many artists, and the snappy weather thinned the crowds who came to browse around. Bidding lagged.

Artists who can make a lightning sketch or cut a neat silhouette are finding refuge in more and more restaurants and night spots. They pull a chair up to your table and work on you while you linger over your cigar.

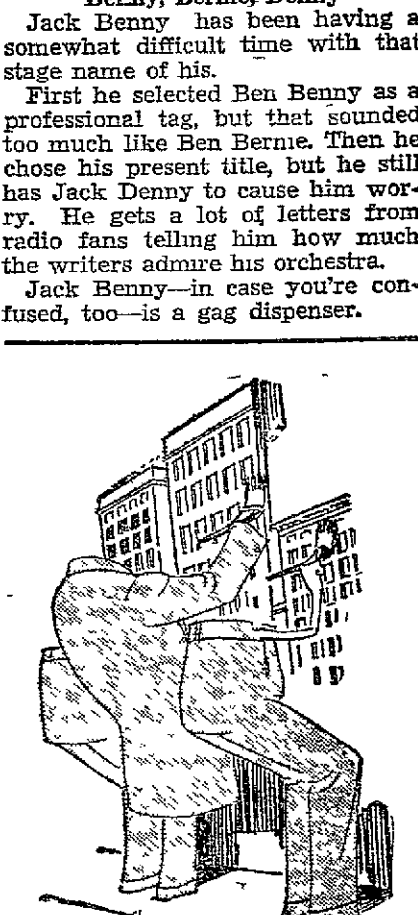

An ingratiating silhouette man wearing the Bavarian uniform of a well known Yorkville spot, agrees to cut a profile for 50 cents. The girls, of course, must have this done.

He folds his paper twice, then offers the other two silhouettes for an extra quarter. Naturally, the escorts pay for them, too, for every one knows that artists themselves must eat.

Benny, Bernie, Benny
Jack Benny has been having a somewhat difficult time with that stage name of his.

First he selected Ben Benny as a professional tag, but that sounded too much like Ben Bernie. Then he chose his present title, but he still has Jack Benny to cause him worry. He gets a lot of letters from radio fans telling him how much the writers admire his output.

Jack Benny—in case you're confused, too—is a gag dispenser.

Mr. Whiffen spoke on the plans and aspirations of Kiwanis. Other talks were given by E. G. Nash of Manitowoc, a charter member of the Manitowoc Kiwanis, by Dr. Charles Gleason of Manitowoc, present lieutenant governor, and by Paul V. Cary of Appleton. At the Kiwanis dinner held at the Hotel Chilton, there were 16 guests from Manitowoc, Sheboygan, Appleton, Seymour and Plymouth.

Mrs. Charles Krug was injured Wednesday afternoon when the automobile in which she was riding tipped over on Highway 31, about four miles east of this city. Her daughter Mrs. Karl Kroehneke was driving the car, and in attempting to turn out for another car struck some loose gravel, which caused the car to run into a ditch and tip over. Mrs. Krug suffered bruises to her chest and was brought to the city in an ambulance. Mrs. Kroehneke was also slightly bruised.

The Ladies Aid society met at the home of Mrs. A. P. Baumann on Wednesday afternoon. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. John Arps on Jan. 4.

A meeting of the Calumet County Dental association was held at the Great Northern hotel in this city Wednesday evening. After a banquet the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Dr. Rudolph Graff of Kiel; secretary and treasurer, Dr. R. Cherosky of Kiel.

Ted Krimmel, 22, of Sheboygan, formerly an employee on the Peter Jucken farm in the town of Chilton, was arrested by Sheriff G. B. Jensen on a warrant charging him with forgery. When arraigned in justice court he waived his hearing and was bound over to circuit court for trial. He expects to appear before Circuit Judge Fred Beglinger on Dec. 12 to enter a plea of guilty. The alleged offense took place in this city July 3rd. Krimmel admits writing a check for $10 and signing the name of Peter Jucken to it. The check was cashed at a local business place and brought to the attention of Mr. Jucken when returned through his bank. A warrant was issued at once, but Krimmel could not be located until last week. He is being held in the county jail in default of $1000 bail.

F. H. Hargrave, of Marquette, Mich., was arrested by Deputy Earl Schwabe for failure to stop at the arterial sign at the intersection of Highways 10 and 57 near Forest Junction. Hargrave paid a fine of $5 and costs.

Thieves Again Enter Library

Silverware Stolen, Safety Box Damaged, Librarian Reports
(Special to Post-Crescent)
New London—For the second time within five months, thieves broke into the public library Wednesday night. A set of silverware, kept at the library for safekeeping by the librarian, and intended for a Christmas gift, was taken, and a safety deposit box in the safe was damaged. The theft was discovered Thursday afternoon by Miss Alice Freiburger. Although the entire office was ransacked, there was little taken, and less damage resulted than on the last occasion. At that time thieves gained entrance through the basement as they did this time. Finding the door locked which leads from library hall to the library proper on the upper floor, the door was forced and the safe was badly damaged. Many thefts of this sort have occurred at the library in the past few years, in nearly all instances entrance being gained through windows in the basement. Bars now may be placed over the rear windows. Though little of real value except small amounts of money collected in fines is ever kept in the safe, damage to the building has been heavy.

The Stockbridge Aces defeated the Oshkosh Fowlers in a fast and exciting game Tuesday night by a score of 19 to 17. The Aces will play their next game Dec. 9. The Ladies Aid society will meet Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Norbert Hostettler. Lunch will be served to the ladies by Mrs. Hostettler and Mrs. Melvin Levknecht.

New London Taking
On Holiday Attire
(Special to Post-Crescent)
New London—New London streets are gradually assuming their holiday attire as Christmas trees are being placed along the walks lining the main thoroughfare of the city. Evergreen trees, which later will be wired, are being brought into the city through an arrangement with Sandie Cousins and city officials. Shops too are taking on a gala air as business houses arrange their windows for the holiday season.

24 Students at School Honored Attain Average Grades of 90 Per Cent or Better in Studies

(Special to Post-Crescent)
New London—Twenty-four students in the past six weeks of school have attained averages of 90 per cent or better. Among the seniors Delos Hobbs again leads the list with an average of 92. for LOVE or MONEY by H.W. CORLEY

MONA MORAN, receptionist in a Wall Street law office, receives an amazing proposal of marriage. Her employer tells her a wealthy client wishes to marry her immediately with the understanding that for a year she shall occupy her own apartment, have unlimited charge accounts, do as she pleases. At the end of that time she is to decide whether to become the man's wife in actuality or secure a divorce.

MONA is in love with BARRY TOWNSEND, rich and socially prominent, who is the business partner of her old friend, STEVE SACCARELLI. Barry and Steve operate a diamond mine in South America. Steve, born to poverty, has recently sold a huge diamond called "The Empress of Peru."

When Mona asks the name of the man who wishes to marry her she is told it is Barry Townsend. Not until the ceremony is about to be performed does she discover the bridegroom is young Barry's uncle, of the same name. Steve and young Barry have returned to South America. Mona, believing her sweetheart lost to her, marries the uncle, LOTTIES CARR, a fashion model, is Mona's only confidante.

Six months pass and Mona lunches with her husband. It is the first time she has gone anywhere with him. He tells her she has brought the diamond, "The Empress," for her. Mona, knowing the bitter feeling between uncle and nephew, tries to bring about a better understanding but fails.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIX

MONA raised startled eyes. "When you are gone?" she asked.

Her husband surveyed her gently. "My dear, do you believe for an instant that I think I shall live forever?" His tone was light but for all that Mona knew he was aware of that which had been concealed from him so carefully. He knew he had been given only a year to live.

For a moment neither spoke. Then the man said cheerfully, "Since life is short and time is fleeting there are several things I would like to do. The first is to see you as frequently as possible. I want to take you about, to show you off if you don't mind the phrase - to provide you with gifts. I want to meet your family, too. I'd like to feel that this rather abrupt move of mine has benefited them in some way. Of course," he added, hastily, "I know you are doing everything for them you can think of. Perhaps I can think of something more."

"You are so kind," replied Mona uncertainly. "But you haven't promised to do the one thing I want most. Will you arrange things for Barry?"

He glanced sharply toward her. "Change my will, you mean?"

She nodded.

Townsend looked away. "One thing at a time, my dear," he said. "It came into the girl's mind that not once had he ever called her "Mona." "One thing at a time," he repeated. "Today let's drop in to call on your family."

He moved forward to give the order to the chauffeur but Mona stopped him. "Maybe I'd better telephone first," she said, trying to hide her confusion. "You know it will be a great relief for Mother."

"Why, of course. Well, telephone first," he spoke to the chauffeur then. "Jackson, will you stop at the next corner?"

Mona was to discover that her husband, fitted in with the life of the Moran household beyond her most optimistic expectations. After that first visit when Ma had hurried into her new silk gown and, with a single sweep, cleared up "that trash of Kitty's" from the dining room table, when Dad had apologized for his lack of a shave and Mona herself had tried not to show her nervousness, the Townsends came often to the Third Avenue flat.

It seemed strange, indeed, to Mona to learn that her husband, with his splendidly erect carriage and distinguished air, was really little younger than her father. The two men had, it seemed, skated on the same park pond long years before.

Kitty admired her brother-in-law and told Isabel Flynn she was almost tempted to call him "John."

That was the name by which Mona addressed her husband in the presence of the family. With a little tact they had succeeded admirably in presenting a picture of completely happy married life. Even Ma's sharp eyes failed to detect any variance from the usual picture of domestic harmony.

Ma, in fact, was deeply impressed by Mona's "fine man." She would scurry about, serving the inevitable tea in thin cups now, at Mona's gentle insistence - with delicate slices of lemon. Once the Townsends stayed to dinner and Mona was pleased and even touched to give her husband's ease in the stuffy little dining room where the obviously "company dinner" of hot and heavy foods was spread before him.

Then came the "grand day." Mrs. Moran expressed it when the family piled into the big car and was whisked away to Long Island for a short dinner because Mr. Moran had, in a conversation with his son-in-law, mentioned his fondness for clams, such as those served in the old days at City Island.

"Sure, and it makes no difference to the man because we aren't swells," Ma, struggling with her new hat slightly askew on her gray hair, had told Mrs. Callahan after the return from the revelry. "Everything you could think of, mind you, set before us. A whole bill for the waiter and such style!"

"Christmas brought bewildering loads of gifts to the Morans from the Townsends."

"You are so good," Mona murmured as she moved about her sitting room one snowy mid-December afternoon, tying gifts with gay ribbons and cords and addressing Christmas cards. "Anybody who has money could order gifts for people but you select them. You even sit here hedging the time up and plan to deliver them yourself."

Her voice faltered a little. Yes, her husband was, as she had told Ma long before a good man. There was only one thing he had failed to do and that was to make up his quarrel with Barry.

"All this is fun," Mr. Townsend replied. "I like it." He was seated by the fire and moved a froth of tissue and scarlet cord from the table as the maid brought in tea. It was cozy sitting there before the firelight with the snow falling outside the window.

"We have shoes, a dress, a cloak - well, nearly a whole outfit for Kitty," Mona went on, checking over her list and touching several packages as she spoke. "You pour tea, will you, Anna?" she said to the maid.

"Let's get her a purse and put some change in it," Mr. Townsend suggested. "It'll get tickets for a musical comedy, too, and she can take her gang."

"Her gang?" asked Mona, puzzled.

"That's what she calls them," her husband responded, amused. "Miss Flynn, the Misses Gordon and several others."

Mona knew Isabel Flynn but "the Misses Gordon" were new to her. "I met quite a few of them en route to the movies that Sunday afternoon when I drove over to pick you up," he replied, accepting the tea cup the maid offered.

He had met them indeed. Kitty, saying the big car, had literally swarmed aboard, introducing him to the other girls as her "brother John." "Brother John" thereupon had responded nobly. "The gang" had been taken inside and driven to the 86th street motion picture house where the chauffeur had been instructed to stop. John had been in the car, drinking tea, gazed at the fire. She remembered Barry had told her that the one thing he missed most in the tropics was the cheer of an open fireplace filled with snapping logs.

"Barry always liked a good fire," her husband said unexpectedly. He had placed another package in the basket which on Christmas Eve was to go to the Moran household.

Then he continued. "I suppose the gift you'd like most this Christmas for me is to do something about Barry, eh?"

"Mona looked at him in amazement. 'I'd like it, of course.' She swallowed with difficulty. 'But don't do it for me. Do it for Barry. For yourself. I've really nothing to do with it as I see it.'"

"As you see it," murmured Mr. Townsend. Then he turned in his path. He had risen and was pacing the floor. "My dear, I'll do as you wish. I'll release the boys' funds. I'll see Garretton right after Christmas."

"You mean you'll make everything all right?"

"The man stopped and sighed. "Can anyone do that, Mona?" he replied in a low tone. "No one but you, I fancy. However this is my idea."

He sank into a chair again and clasping his hands, looked at the blaze. "You recall," he began "the terms of our bargain. At the end of a year you were to be free to remain or go to Reno. Suppose we leave it this way. You decide - oh, not today or tomorrow but take your time - which it shall be. Reno or - well, not Reno."

"In any case the terms shall stand. In my will you are to receive your share with certain stipulations. Whether it's Reno or not you shall be heirless to the larger part of my - let's call them assets."

"If you decide, however, to pass Reno by I will, as you put it, do the right thing by Barry. Possibly even more than you might be termed the right thing."

Mona rose, her face flushing. "You mean," she began but did not go on. The meaning was clear enough.

Her husband bowed. "That is precisely what I mean, my dear. Take your time. At the end of your reflection on the matter be my wife. Forsake the Reno plan. We'll go to Europe, around the world."

"But - but -" said Mona, still helpless.

"Do I need to tell you," her husband continued, "that I am fearfully, tremendously, deeply in love with you? I have been ever since the day I first saw you at the Savarin. The day I was lunching with Garretton. But of course I thought you knew I love you!"

Start From Scratch for Dandruff

BY ELSIE PIERCE

When I say "starting from scratch in the treatment of dandruff" I mean it. The mild, scaly type of dandruff can be removed in the following, simple way. The night before, or a few hours before you shampoo your hair, part it every inch or so and loosen the scales with a fine toothed comb. Be careful not to bruise the scalp. Next, with a fairly stiff bristled brush, go over entire scalp, brushing through scalp and hair, upward and outward. This will help to remove the loose flakes. Now shake your hair by bending from the waist forward and down and bringing head and trunk back to upright position. This is a good exercise, too, for the waist and upper trunk.

Warm Oil Treatment

If your scalp is dry, and the scaly type of dandruff usually accompanies this condition, the warm oil treatment will help tremendously to keep scalp clean and restore some of the oil that is naturally lacking. Part the hair in small sections. With a toothbrush (sterilized) apply the warm oil as warm as you can stand without burning the scalp. A pad of cotton may be used for this purpose. Or, the oil applied directly to scalp with a medicine dropper. Olive oil is best but castor oil, or almond oil can be used. It is best to leave this on overnight and to shampoo in the morning. If you cannot do this, at least allow the oil to remain for a few hours. Massage scalp with the cushion parts of the fingertips feeling the scalp move like a loose cap, back and forth, and sit with a strong electric bulb turned on your hair (real sunshine is beneficial, occasionally and when weather permits).

Shampoo

Then comes the shampoo. For the dry scalp and hair, pure castile soap made into a liquid or jelly, or liquid tar soap is good. Use plenty of warm water massaging the scalp as you shampoo. Rinse several times. Don't call it a day until every bit of soap has been rinsed out of the hair. Dry with warm towels and by hand. Two or three times a week rub a sulphur cream into the scalp; sixty grains of sulphur to one ounce of vasoline makes a good dandruff remedy.

Oil Scalp

When the scalp is oily it needs special care; daily brushing, massage and frequent shampooing to keep it clean. Otherwise, the dandruff accumulates, mixes with the oily secretions, forms a thick mass which shuts out air and sunlight, doesn't permit the scalp to breathe properly. And before you know it infection is encouraged. Then a thick, incrusting type of dandruff forms. This is very stubborn and will need the assistance of a scalp specialist to cure. Liquid green soap is a good shampoo medium for this type of scalp and an anti-dandruff remedy that may be used several times a week, rubbed thoroughly into the scalp as follows: 30 grains precipitated sulphur; one ounce adipic acid; 30 drops oil of bergamot.

Systematic brushing, massage and shampooing are very important. A self-addressed, stamped envelope will bring these bulletins to you. In addition, I have just prepared a new bulletin called "Do's and Don'ts in Treatment of Dandruff." You may find it very helpful. Address Miss Pierce, care of the Appleton Post-Crescent.

The most important contribution Pine Bluff, Ark., has made to the film world in years is a pair of rising young stars—Peggy Shannon, left, and Janet Chandler.

Two Movie Stars on Their Way to Top

BY DAN THOMAS

Hollywood—You're going to hear a lot about Pine Bluff, Ark., one of these days if two young girls out here have anything to say about it. Peggy Shannon and Janet Chandler are those girls and each proudly claims Pine Bluff as her home. Red-headed Peggy already has made a pretty good mark in the film world. And blond Janet is closing in on her rapidly.

Some years ago Janet, whose real name is Lillian Guenther, was told by her grandfather that it would be up to her to keep the name of Guenther going.

"So now that there is a possibility of my doing something, I'm using the name of Chandler," the young actress laughed.

Janet came out here from New York, three years ago to make the grade in pictures. For three years she has studied and battled her way forward. And now she is beginning to reap the reward.

She played the leading feminine role opposite George O'Brien in his last picture, "Golden West," and already has been assigned to the feminine lead in his next film.

A laugh in the kitchen should be a roar in the theater. That's El Brendel's theory. So while El is working in a picture, he goes to the kitchen every night and rehearses the following day's scenes with his wife as the audience. If she laughs, he knows it must be funny. If she doesn't—well, sometimes the director makes him do it anyway.

Minimum Bidding Routes Best for Slam Contracts

BY ELY CULBERTSON

There is no Slam harder to reach than notrump Slam. Usually the strength is so distributed between the two hands that neither player can properly convey his true values. When such a Slam is reached it is usually via minimum bidding routes, which sounds impossible. Actually, this kind of bidding is the finest there is, and particularly shows partnership co-operation, as each player is willing to pass the decision on to his partner. The following hand exemplifies this:

Wonder just what's going to happen out in Mary's neighborhood. Mary is being rushed right off her feet these days from three different directions. And it wouldn't surprise Hollywood a bit to see the rushing end up in an engagement.

"Well, anyway there will be two left out in the cold to console each other. Buddy Rogers, Dick Powell, who has so recently come to the front and Russell Gleason, who has just returned from a jaunt through Europe are the three contenders.

A few days ago Diana Wynyard, promising newcomer to the screen, was being interviewed by her studio press agent.

"I always avoid forming habits," confided the actress.

"Such as?"

"Well, I go without smoking for a whole week every now and then just to prove to myself that I can."

"We can't use that," exclaimed the press agent. "We never reveal the fact that our women stars smoke at all."

You could increase your happiness tenfold if you would only turn to the happy things of life and be grateful for the many good things that you have but choose not to see. There is in your makeup a decided religious streak and to some extent you are inclined to seek a solution to the mysteries of life.

You cannot subordinate yourself to the commands of others; neither do you have the qualities necessary to successfully lead and direct without antagonizing. On the surface you appear hard and dominating; underneath, but seldom evidenced, is a timid nature, hesitant and vacillating. The Story of Sue

By Margery Hale

THE tablecloths in the small luncheon room were bright red. The coffee cups were thick and yellow. It was a Bohemian sort of place. J. Joe Raynor groaned.

"It's pretty bad, Joan, but do you mind? They do have good coffee."

"I like it," she answered. She would have liked anything, with Phil back in her world again. "Tell me about Sally."

"Why—there isn't much to tell. She was rather ill in the night. Once we thought she was going to do a fade-out. But she came back. She'll be all right now. She's really strong and husky although she looks so fragile."

"I'm glad," Joan said. "But what about the trial and everything?"

"We'll be able to get her out all right. It wasn't her fault. The man had her dope or something. Besides," he hesitated. "I've got some news, Joan. Or maybe I should let Sally tell you."

"What is it?" she asked, although she knew without any more words.

"I'm marrying the heroine of the gun tragedy. I coaxed her to agree last night." He smiled.

But Joan was watching quizzically. He had not wanted Sally to be coaxed. He didn't want to marry Sally. That, Joan knew. But he was being sporting about it and doing it. Only, was it fair to either himself or Sally, she mused, to enter into such a marriage? When two persons were in love marriage was wonderful, but when there was love only on one side—She interrupted her reflections.

"Congratulations, Joe. Sally's a gorgeous person. I'm ever so glad."

"Thanks, Sally's a good scout."

He started to talk about something else.

Joan was remembering the charm which Sally had once had for Joe. He had worshipped, rather blindly, at her shrine. He had had plenty of competition for the stag line formed in Sally's end of the room. Joan had been away from the city, but she had heard about it when she returned from her years of study abroad. Then suddenly, Dr. Raynor had realized that he loved Ruth Bradley, Sally's twin sister, who had been demure and obscure until her spirit of revolt got to work. She had been as glamorous as Sally then. But she had not married Joe Raynor. She had married Dale Courtney.

Sally, inconsistently, had fallen in love with Joe Raynor when she realized that she had lost him.

Joe was speaking again. "Did you hear that Ruth and Dale Courtney returned last night?"

"Oh, no, how glorious!"

Dr. Raynor's voice was quiet.

"It's mighty nice to have them here, Sally's glad. Ruth will be good for her."

"But—but Joe—" Joan stopped. After all she had no right to pry into other people's wounds.

But he guessed what she had started to say. His words told her.

NEXT: More confidences.

My Neighbor Says—

To smooth frosting on cakes, use a spatula or broad knife which has been dipped in warm water.

When a chimney catches fire, salt should be thrown on the fire at once and a wet blanket held across the fireplace. The blanket prevents the draft and allows the fire-killing gases produced by the salt to rise slowly and to extinguish the burning soot.

Cabbage contains valuable vitamins and frequently should be eaten raw or cooked until tender. Never cook cabbage until it has changed in color, as it then will be indigestible.

Find Reason That Makes Child Bite Playmates

BY ANGELO PATRI

"My little daughter, three years old last May, is a lovely child. She is healthy and full of life and very affectionate. She loves to play with other children and they seem to love her but we have one dreadful trouble with her. She bites the other children."

"She plays along nicely for a time but before she finishes the game is sure to rush up to some perfectly harmless child and bite him or her on the cheek. She doesn't seem to be mean about it. She runs up to the child as though she was loving him, kissing him, and bites him hard."

"I have talked to her, spanked her, and still she does it. She says she is sorry but the next time she does it again."

The child does not bite in anger. The bite is not a purposeful bite and quite impulsive. The child plays hard. She enjoys the association with the other children. Harder and harder she plays and her excitement mounts as she plays. The energy she releases is too much for her control. It is as if a flood rushed over the shallow tracks of controlled impulse and drowned out all control. The emotion runs wild and works its will upon the child. To rid herself of it she bites.

What to do? Certainly slapping won't cure it. It may help for the moment to redirect her attention and teach her that she is disappointed. But it won't help her next time when the emotional excitement overflows it bounds. The same thing will happen. We have to help the child to establish control and that takes time and experience.

I would have an expert look the child over to see if there is anything he can do to help the child control her excitement. Sometimes there is a physical basis for the crisis. I would try to have her play with children who did not over stimulate her. The gentler sort of play will help. Then I would stop the game before the crisis. That needs great forethought and skill on your part. If you snatch her away in the height of her excitement she will probably bite you. Plan the game to her progress. Watch her behavior toward the others. When you see the color mounting to her cheeks, her eyes glowing dark and bright and big, redirect the game. Throw the ball a bit further away and send her after it; redirect her thought. Study and you will find the way.

Salesmanship Required to Catch Man-and-Hold Him

BY DOROTHY DIX

The chief thing, girls, in catching a husband and holding him after you get him is salesmanship.

It is an advantage, of course, to have had Nature provide you with an Air Line of attractions, but these avail you little if you do not know how to present them or call them the attention to them. The world is full of girls who are pretty and clever and look like a daily hint from Paris who spend their evenings sitting at home with Mamma and Papa and reading improving books, while other girls no better looking, no more entertaining, no better dressed are stepping out to places of amusement with eligible young men. And it is an axiom that the women who are best fitted to make good wives and mothers mostly arrive at the Spinster's Retreat instead of the altar.

It may be true, as a great philosopher has said, that if you manufacture a better mouse trap than anyone else people will wear a path to your door to buy it, but this is not the case with women who manufacture husband-catchers. They cannot carry out their business without bringing it to the public's notice. They have to go after their customers. No man seeks them out in hidden places and insists on buying them wedding rings.

A girl may be as beautiful as Billie Dove, as witty as Helen Roland, as thrifty as Betty Green, as good a cook as a domestic science teacher, but less she knows how to advertise her wares no man ever discovers her. The flower that is born to blush unobserved is the maiden who lacks salesmanship.

For men are singularly obtuse about women. They never see one unless she hits them in the eye, and that is why it is not enough for a girl to be pious, chaste and an aggregation of all the virtues. She has to know how to dress her window and turn the spotlight on.

If a girl wants to be popular and have dates and have men take her about and show her a good time, she has to sell herself to them as being worth the price of the money they spend upon her. She must be sufficiently good looking and well dressed to make them proud of being out with her and to cause other men to rubber and ask who is the girl friend. Furthermore, she must throw in for good measure as much jolly as the tariff will bear and a liberal amount of appreciation and a willingness to work like a coal-heaver to entertain her escort.

As a general thing men's taste runs to fancy goods in women and this explains why little fluffly trifles always has so much more attention than plain Mary Jane whose character is all wool and a yard wide and guaranteed to stand the wear and tear of life without shrinking or running in the wash.

If a girl wants to marry, she has to begin by breaking down the man's sales resistance to matrimony in general for most men think that somehow, by their own subtlety and the help of God, they are going to escape burdening themselves with a wife and family. Of course, very few succeed in this, but often it takes years of high-powered salesmanship to convince a man that he is lonely and needs a wife to take care of him and that two can live more cheaply than one. Often it is only after a man is enfeebled by age or weakened by sickness that he succumbs to this line of sales talk. Perhaps that explains why flappers so often marry aged millionaires and trained nurses can always marry their patients.

Then every woman who marries has to sell some particular man the idea that she is his predestined mate and that she alone of all the women in the world understands him and preserves just how wonderful and great he is and how superior to all other men. No man knows how he happens to marry the particular woman he does marry, but she does. She knows just how she suggested to him the notion that he wanted her and couldn't be happy until he got her.

But if it is necessary for a woman to be a good saleswoman to catch a husband, it is even more necessary for her to be a super-saleswoman to keep one. That is a more difficult task, for it requires keeping him content with his bargain after the novelty has worn off and his purchase begins to show the wear and tear of age and usage. And that is a good deal

GOOD LASTE TODAY

By Emily Post

FINGER-BOWLS AND PARTIES

My dear Mrs. Post: When finger bowls are placed on the dessert plate, should they be placed on a dolly or should the small finger bowl plate be placed on the dessert plate? Does the dessert plate have to match the finger bowl or would it be correct to use a topaz glass dessert plate and a crystal finger bowl?

Answer: Dobbies are rather out of fashion, but there is no rule against them if you like them. Put any type of finger bowl on a china plate, but do not mix two varieties of glass. Use your topaz glass plates if you choose, and then exchange them for white glass finger bowls on china plates.

My dear Mrs. Post: When I entertain at a buffet supper, should a dessert be served that can be placed on the buffet with the rest of the food, or is it permissible to serve such a dessert as ice cream which, of course, couldn't be set in place with the rest of the meal? Do the guests take their dessert immediately, or come back later to get it?

Answer: Have the ice cream brought in later. Usually the hot dishes are first removed, but if supper is indefinite as to length of time, you could leave the hot things at one end of the table and put ice cream at the other. Guests help themselves to dessert after finishing the main course.

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it not possible to entertain a small group of younger people at dinner without the use of servants? We no longer maintain them and my mother insists we should not attempt to have a dinner. I feel that there must be some type of informal dining where servants are not necessary. Couldn't you help me out?

Answer: Certainly invite your friends to a buffet dinner or supper and let them help themselves.

Dear Mrs. Post: Are demi-tasse cups necessary for serving coffee after dinner, or will tea cups do just as well?

Answer: You should have after dinner cups on saucers and coffee spoons. ("Demi-tasse" means a half sized cup. "Tasse" is the French for cup.)

like keeping a man sold on the belief that his old automobile is a better machine than this season's model that is glittering with new paint and has stream line-effects and all the new gadgets.

Still it can be done and is done by tens of thousands of estate wives who sell their husbands so completely on the belief that they are the only genuine blown-in-the-bottle helpmates that their husbands never even take a look-see at any other woman or dream of trading in the old wife for a new.

There are many things that the wife who sells herself to her husband has to do. For one thing, she has to keep herself good-looking at so that she continually justifies his taste in picking her out. She has to be easy to get along with and make herself agreeable to him as the women he works with every day. In a word, she has to carry a line of attractions that enables her to meet all competition.

Then she has to take as much thought in studying her approach as if she was a super-saleswoman trying to sell him a block of bonds or a bill of goods. She has to wait for the psychological moment to tell him bad news and ask for money. She must have enough tact to know how to smooth down his fur until she has got him in a complacent mood when she can handle him and make him think that it is an economy to buy her a string of pearls or that her health requires a trip to Europe.

Some women are born saleswomen. They can talk a case-hardened old bachelor into believing that he prefers his own fireside to a club and would rather push a perambulator than play golf. They can convince any man that she is the one woman he has been looking for all his life. These are the women who always have dates and who, as often as not, are the women whose school-days up and down the road are a constant reminder of their school-days up and down the road.

These are old maids.

If you have catarrhal deafness, or head noises, causes by catarrh, or if phlegm drops in your throat, secure proper treatment at once. Sprays, salves and inhalers may bring you a temporary relief, but permanent results can only come from a constitutional treatment that will expel the catarrhal poison from your system.

Get from Schinz Bros. Co. or your druggist an oz. of Farmin ("Double Strength"). Take this home and add 1 pint hot water and a little sugar. Take a tablespoonful four times a day: clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy, mucous stop dropping. All sufferers from catarrhal deafness or head noises need the simple, pleasant, inexpensive Farmin treatment.

Grand Jury Is Probable in Yacht Murder

Members of Crew Forbidden to Discuss Events Before Slaying

Long Beach, Calif. (P)—The Capt. Walter Wanderwell murder mystery unfolded like a gripping drama today. Grand jury action was threatened, members of the crew of Wanderwell's yacht, Carna, were forbidden to discuss events preceding the slaying, and a scion of British nobility was arrested.

Throughout the developments, William James Guy, young Australian soldier of fortune held as a suspect in the killing Monday night of the colorful globe-trotter, clung to his alibi that he was 30 miles away from the scene of the shooting on the Carna.

Investigations were climaxed last night by a charge of Police Lieut. Owen Murphy that "certain persons, for reasons best known to themselves, have been withholding information from the police."

His charges were followed by an order issued by the Long Beach police forbidding any member of the crew, consisting of seven women and eight men, from talking to anyone but authorities about the slaying. The order precipitated a sharp clash between Lieut. R. C. Miller and E. T. McGann, attorney for Guy.

Shortly before this order was issued, federal authorities requested police to arrest Lord Edward Engene Fernando Montagu, second son of the Duke of Manchester, British peer, and a member of the Carna crew. He was transferred to the Long Beach jail by two detectives, Miller and E. W. Vance, who said they understood Montagu had overstayed the terms of his visitor's permit which allowed him to enter the United States.

Meanwhile, authorities located Edward O. Delarm, an aviator and Guy's chief alibi witness. Delarm was placed in technical custody and detectives began questioning him regarding various details of Guy's alibi. A subpoena to testify at the coroner's inquest today was served on Delarm.

Authorities had reported Delarm as missing when he and his wife failed to keep a police appointment last night. It was at the Delarm home that Guy was found and arrested early yesterday morning.

Police declared Delarm was present at the fight between Guy and

LIFE'S ODDITIES

Wanderwell less than two weeks ago.

Located after a day spent in seclusion, Mrs. Aloha Wanderwell, pretty widow of the slain adventurer, said she was not convinced Guy was the "mystery man in gray" who shot her husband in the back.

"He had no motive," Mrs. Wanderwell said, "unless it was an imaginary one."

She recounted how Guy, who told authorities he was at the Delarm home Monday night when Wanderwell was slain, had caused trouble on one of Wanderwell's previous world cruises and was placed in chains off South America for insubordination. She said he later was discharged.

Against Guy's alibi, authorities said, were the statements of Ralph

Dunlap, an aviation mechanic employed by Delarm, who told police he talked with Guy at the Delarm home.

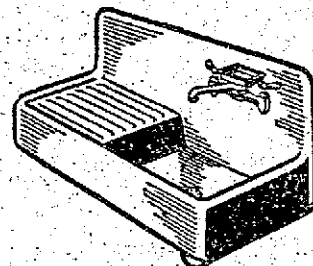

"He told me about 9 p. m., he was going to the Long Beach waterfront," police quoted Dunlap as saying. "He drove away in the automobile he used."

Police concluded previously that Wanderwell was slain between 9 p. m. and 9:15 p. m., Monday night. Dunlap said he knew Guy was in the United States illegally and thought when he said he was going to leave town for a few days that Guy was trying "to dodge immigration officers." Federal authorities announced, regardless of the outcome of Guy's case, he will be deported.

Notre Dame and Southern Cal Ready for Whistle

Ramblers are Picked to Win
By TouchdownExpect Greatest Air Battle
Of the 1932 Football Season

BY PAUL ZIMMERMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES.—(P)—University of Southern California's football team went into seclusion today to meditate on its impending grid battle with Notre Dame here Saturday.

"I am satisfied," said Coach Howard Jones, "that everything that could have been done on the training field has been accomplished. I am not certain as to the physical condition of the players. We will not know until after the game whether they have been worked too hard or not hard enough."

"I like their mental attitude, though, and know they are ready to play the best game they know how to play."

Jones also went into seclusion with the team, unbeaten in 18 starts.

"There was an air of expectancy over the Ramblers' arrival late today although no one was sure just what to expect beyond an array of great gridders from South Bend. The squad has been at Tucson, Ariz., for nearly two days."

No Parade of Ambulances
Despite pessimistic reports from the Notre Dame coach, Hunk Anderson, no one contemplated seeing a parade of ambulances from the railroad station to the hotel.

The betting continued at odds of 10 to 8 in favor of the invaders, with Southern California's backers asking a touchdown margin.

Every pre-game indication pointed toward an aerial battle such as no Notre Dame-Southern California game ever has known. With each eleven boasting exceptional lines there was little question but that, barring something unusual, the outcome would be decided by the success or failure of an overhead attack.

In eight games this year Southern California has permitted only 61 first downs by opponents and almost half of these were the result of passes. Still, the Trojan defense against an assault through the air has not been poor. Of the 111 passes thrown by the opposition, only 30 have been completed and 19 were intercepted. Two were made good for the only touchdowns scored on the offensive this fall.

Six For 7 More Games
Offensively, Southern California has gained 653 yards through the ozone, completing 29 of 80 passes thrown. Only four were intercepted. Bob McNeish, a hardback, is the best of four adept throwers on the team. Ford Palmer, end, leads the list of potential receivers.

Coaches and officials of the two institutions will dine together tonight, but none of the players will participate. Theirs will be simple training diet at their respective hotels.

Trojan officials announced the home and away series with Notre Dame has been continued through 1935, perpetuating relations started six years ago.

JONES SIGNS FOR 5 YEARS
Los Angeles.—(P)—Howard Harding Jones, one of the nation's leading football strategists, held a new contract at the University of Southern California today.

They have signed for five more years yesterday, which with the year remaining on his old contract, will carry him through the 1938 season. While no salary was divulged, it was reported to be approximately $12,000.

Kimberly Alleys
Seeking Pin Matches

Kimberly—The Kimberly Alleys defeated the Fowler Grills team from Oshkosh in a special match game bowled on the Kimberly alleys this week by taking three straight games. They won the first by 105 pins with a score of 925, second by 25 pins with a score of 893, the third game by 55 pins and a score of 870. The Kimberly team's totals for the three games was 2688 compared to Oshkosh's total of 2508.

The Kimberly bowlers were: Fred Behling, Carl Lemmers, C. Van Hammond, C. Van Haest and M. Lemmers. Any team wishing to play match games with the Kimberly team may make arrangements by calling 9710-R12, Kimberly or by writing Carl Lemmers, Kimberly.

Marquette Battles
Wildcats Tomorrow

Chicago.—(P)—Indiana and Iowa will resume their pre-conference basketball schedules tonight, and six other Big Ten teams are scheduled for tomorrow night, winding up the first week of the practice season.

The Hoosiers, victorious by one point over Wabash, will meet the University of Cincinnati, and Iowa, which overwhelmed Bradley, meets Monmouth college.

Northwestern and Michigan encounter serious tests tomorrow, the Wildcats meeting Marquette at Evanston, and Michigan tackling Michigan State at Ann Arbor. The remaining games are: Lake Forest at Chicago, Bradley at Illinois, Ohio Wesleyan at Ohio State, and Grinnell at Minnesota.

Chaff'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

Not Much Difference

WATCHING Lawrence college cagers, some 25 in number, drill the other night under Coach Arthur C. Denney, it occurred that the new ten second rule isn't going to make much difference in general offensive play on big floors.

The Vikes were working on plays the other night and they advanced into the defensive team's half the floor and there performed in the usual manner except that no effort was made by the center to hold the ball around the free throw mark as has been customary with big centers in past years. Aside from that the delayed offense was the style and there was plenty of opportunity to toss the ball around inside the deadly center line.

The 10 second rule probably will be noticed more by fans late in the game. It will definitely stop the old method of moving back to a far corner and holding the ball or sitting on it to protect a two or three point lead.

On small floors things will be different of course. There the center line may be right under the feet of the defensive forwards in which case the new rule will all but require the offensive team to use the fast break, try long passes or just

O. K. Taxis lost two games in Eagles pin circles this week but managed to keep one game in front of the F. O. E. five. The Taxis dropped their two contests to the Modern Cleaners. The Cleaners copied the first with F. Yelg's 191 and then dropped the second when Kunitz rolled a 195. In the third game the Cleaners won with 191 by B. Welhouse and 200 by F. Yelg. Yelg had a 572 series.

F. O. E. won two from the Graef Lumber, as Hy Strutz pounded the maples for a 608 series count. The F. O. E. won the first game despite Strutz' 200. Strutz hit a 219 in the second and the Lumbermen copied. In the third game his 189 led the Lumbermen. Anderson had a 293 for the F. O. E. in the last game but it failed to do much good. He also had 190 and 178 for the 601 series.

Paul Sell paced his Specials in two wins over the Eagle Specials and J. Sorenson did the trick in the third game for three straight wins. Sell had 196 in the first win and 190 in the second.

Stark Hotels took two from the Koch Glasses. The Glasses won the first game with F. Huntz' 201 and despite a 214 by R. Stark. The Hotels won the second game with Stark's 182 and the third with J. Bushey's 199. A Boehme had a 211 for the Glasses in the last game but did little good.

Local fans will have a chance to see plenty of games with each set of rules in use—the high school will play the old style rules, the college the new style—both on big floors.

It almost appears as if the Green Bay Packers and fans aren't as good sportsmen as we thought. They aren't taking that trimming at Portsmouth as much like gentlemen as one would think after ruling the roost for three straight years.

Notre Dame Football

Tomorrow afternoon about 4 o'clock Appleton time Notre Dame and Southern California will clash on the coast. If Notre Dame wins all well and good. If the Irish fail, then the folks will talk about Hunk Anderson and the decline of Notre Dame football.

And there's a good chance the Irish will lose too, for they are not a great team like some of past years, they were keyed highly for the Army, haven't as much to gain as Southern California, and won't be playing on the home lot.

The decline of Notre Dame football since Rockne died, if it can be called a decline, is fairly definite but natural. Whether or not the decline is only temporary is another matter. No system, however, founded so much upon the personality and genius of one individual, pulling all the intricate strings of the puppet show, could continue to operate with consistent effectiveness without the master's touch.

With sweeping colors, moreover, Rockne painted his last two football seasons vividly. The 1929-30 Notre Dame teams were the nearest thing to perfection in gridiron skill and power ever seen. It does not seem an exaggeration, even now, to say that the 1930 combination which ran roughshod over Pennsylvania, 60 to 20, and trampled Southern California, 27 to 0, was as near unbeatable as any aggregation in modern football history.

Had Rockne himself lived, a natural let-down from such heights could have been expected. "Rock" a few weeks before his tragic death, that he expected to lose "one or two" games in the fall of 1931, that it would be a good thing for the "boys" to get the idea of invincibility out of their heads.

The anvil chorus, therefore, should hesitate before piling the "blame" or its equivalent upon the rugged shoulders of "Hunk" Anderson, regardless of what his virtues or shortcomings may be as head coach. It is difficult to figure a football coach in a tougher spot than Anderson, all because the winning habit became so strongly associated with the football teams at South Bend.

It's the Contrast

Like most everything else, football fortunes move in cycles. Of course there are certain, definite factors entering into the production of winning teams, such as the fundamentals of coaching and material. Even the best systems strike slumps.

It just so happened that Notre Dame, under Rockne, kept the average so high that a dip in the results always seems to shock us into general populace. They immediately view with alarm.

It would seem about time to change the subject and worry over when Tennessee is going to lose another football game.

and and 179 for the third. The best Heckert efforts were 176 by M. Tornow in the first game, A. Munderinger's 169 in the second and R. Conlon's 172 in the third.

Belling Drugs beat the Appleton Specials in three games. L. Luaders had a 174 in the first, 178 in the second and P. Hornke a 176 in the third. The best effort of the Specials was M. Puls' 198 in the first game, 187 in the second and T. Giesen's in the third.

In the other game the Arcades won two from the Watts and Volts. Vi Durnham had a 173 as the Watts won the first game. Arcades took the second with A. Clemons' 200 and the third with J. Glasheen's 149.

Vikes Will Work in

Scrimmages Tonight

Lawrence college varsity basketball squad will get a scrimmage workout tonight when Coach A. C. Denney sends the boys against a squad of freshmen and some of the former Lawrence greats. The scrimmages will start about 4:30 and in successful Denney may let the boys rest Saturday. The two games will be played simultaneously and the Vike mentor will attempt to watch both groups at the same time.

Drills for the 25 or so Vike varsity players during the last week have been designed to give them scoring play and improve their shooting eye. The Vikes play St. Norbert college five here next Friday night, Dec. 16.

Packers May Take
Jaunt to Hawaii

Tentative Plans Made for
Two Games on Honolulu Gridiron

Green Bay — Three post-season games, two of them played in Honolulu, Hawaii, may be added to the Green Bay Packers season, following an invitation received by officials of the football corporation. Announcement of the offer was made by Lee H. Joannes, president.

Definite action on the proposal probably will be withheld until after the Packer-Bear game at Chicago Sunday. If the Packers make a good showing against the powerful Chicago team, it is likely that the western trip, which also embraces a charity contest at San Francisco, Jan. 22, will be made, but if the Bears treat the national champions as roughly as did the Portsmouth Spartans, the long tour probably will not be taken.

Tentative plans include the playing of two games in Honolulu, one on Christmas and the other on New Year's day, against an all-star eleven composed of former Pacific coast and Hawaii university players. Both games would be played in the Beavan stadium at Honolulu, which is said to be backed by the Star-Bulletin, Hawaiian newspaper, and the Bank of Hawaii.

Assuming that the projected trip, the longest ever taken by a professional football club, may be completed, football corporation officials have made tentative reservations for 22 men to sail from Los Angeles, Calif., Dec. 16 on the Matson line. The return trip would be made sometime in mid-January in time for the Knights of Columbus game at San Francisco Jan. 22, when the Packers would face the West Coast Stars.

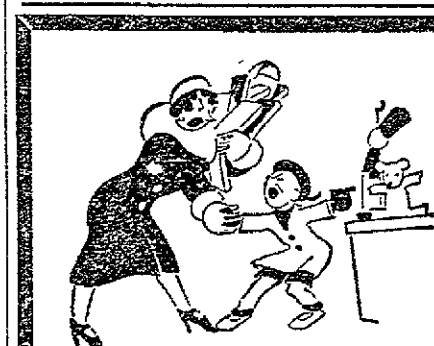

The defeat at Portsmouth has had no effect upon the invitation, according to a representative of interested parties who interviewed A. B. Turnbull, a director of the corporation, at the Ohio city Sunday afternoon.

"The Packers are the team with the reputation," Mr. Turnbull was told. "Everyone knows that even a championship team must slip now and then."

Gus Bodway Makes

Gus Bodway, one of the boys from over in the Fourth ward, entered the amateur racket last night by appearing on a card at the Chicago Night Club, Chicago. He hung a K. O. on Guy McIntyre, Chicago, in the third round. Bodway weighed 202 pounds and McIntyre hit at 198. Bodway is better known around here as a member of the Appleton Red football squad but has possibilities as a boxer, it is said, and will try to get on amateur cards in the valley soon.

Kimberly Club
Beats Ponds in Overtime Battle

Gossens Gets Going in Second Half and Villagers Win

KIMBERLY — One of the most thrilling basketball games of the season was staged at the Kimberly Club last night when a packed house of excited fans saw the Clubbers go two over time periods to defeat the strong Pond All Stars, Appleton, by a 30 to 29 count.

With the Appleton team and its former college stars going through their capers like well oiled machines and the Clubbers fighting at a break neck speed, Referee George Christoph had a great evening fanning some of the boys.

The game got underway with both teams playing great defensive ball. The two-man job of guarding Gossens was given to Nielson, a former Carleton star and he held the Kimberly flash to a free throw during the first half. Nielson went out on four personals in the last minute of the first half. The Clubbers held a 3-2 lead at the close of the quarter. In the second period work by Laird and Notebaart put the Pond team in the lead by a 10 to 7 count.

Gossens Gets Started
The defensive work of the Ponds, a tall, rangy aggregation, held the Club forward wall scoreless in the first half. The only points made were by the guards, Busch and Schwanke. In the second half with no one to halt Gossens the Club forwards started to click and Joe piled in five field goals and five free shots while Bouressa, a lanky reserve man, aided him with some neat team work and two buckets. Eucky Le May, fast little forward, was feeding passes into the offense like bullets and dropped a field goal and three free shots.

The Pond stars were Laird and Steinberg. Laird with his lightning pivot at center put in three field goals, while Steinberg at guard sank three beautiful long shots, two of which were from three quarters of the floor. Bowly a youngster of high school fame also took a big part by dropping two field goals.

The Ponds held a slight lead of 16 to 14 in the third period, but in the last quarter neither team had an advantage and with the closing gun were deadlocked at 21 all. In the first extra period Steinberg's long shot tied the count at 27 all. In another extra period both teams played cautious ball but the Club made a free shot after each team had sunk a field goal.

High School Cagers
Play Rapids, Wausau

TEN members of the Appleton high school basketball squad left this afternoon for Wisconsin Rapids, Stevens Point and Wausau. The boys are booked to play the Rapids tonight and Wausau on Saturday night. They will stay at the Point Friday night.

The weekend's contests are the second and third practice games for the Orange preparatory to opening of the regular season a week from tonight at East Green Bay. Last week the Appleton cagers, humbled Oshkosh in a practice tilt.

The large squad being taken on the trip is an indication of the abundance of material Coach Shields has this winter. There are but two lettermen on the squad, the others being boys playing their first varsity games. However, they all worked as reserves for the varsity last year or on the second squad and showed well at Oshkosh last week when something like 13 or 14 made the jaunt.

Capt. Robert Rule and Jim Murphy are the two lettermen and are due to toil in the guard positions. Two other guards on the jaunt are Cy Burton and Jack Bowers both playing their first year of varsity ball.

Cliff Burton and Chuck Arnold have been given center berth assignments and will change off. Both handle themselves well and are rangy. The forwards have been named as Don Johnston, who saw some action last year, George Rooney who seems to be the squad's "Dead-Eye-Dick," Archie Van Ryzen, another good shot, and Roland Winter, a gangling youngster who should come through with practice.

Little is known of the Wisconsin Rapids squad. It has a new coach, Carl Klandrud, who coached at River Falls teachers college until about a month ago. Klandrud has been at the Rapids but 10 days and his squad may not have advanced as fast as the Orange. Coach Joe Shields of Appleton and Klandrud attended La Crosse state teachers college at the same time and will be renewing an old acquaintance.

Wausau also is pretty much an unknown quantity except that its fans are rather ambitious and have been asking for games with Fox Valley teams for several years. The club played at the state tournament last season and showed several likely looking boys who are supposed to be back this season. Among the boys is a big center named Nimz and rated the best at the state meet.

Southern A. A. U. Officers
Hear Testimony in Didrikson Case

Dallas, Tex. — (P) — Mildred "Babe" Didrikson may know tomorrow if she will be able to play basketball with the Golden Cyclones this winter. A decision on her amateur status was promised then by Lawrence Di Benedetto, chairman of the registration committee of the Southern district of the Amateur Athletic Union which Monday disqualified the outstanding girl athlete because of alleged commercialism of her fame.

Di Benedetto heard testimony here yesterday by Miss Didrikson and E. Gordon Perry, Dallas automobile agent, denying that the athlete granted permission to publish her picture and indorsement of a motorcar. Benedetto took their affidavits back to New Orleans, to lay the evidence before other members of the committee. Dr. A. Magabgab and Claude Simons.

Miss Didrikson, 1932 Olympic star, said she had merely praised the car she bought from the Dallas concern and that the automobile agent sent her comment to the factory as favorable publicity without her consent. Perry corroborated her testimony.

LaCrosse Teachers
Win First Game 29-27

La Crosse —(P)—The La Crosse State Teachers college basketball team opened its season here last night with a 29 to 27 victory over Illinois state normal. The visitors' final spurt after Novak, center, and Schwoegler, forward, had been removed from the La Crosse lineup, almost overcame an early lead maintained by the local peds.

Wise Money on LaBarba to Win Over Chocolate

Cuban Negro Has Not Been So Impressive in Recent Long Bouts

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—One of the three legs on the featherweight throne—that which Kid Chocolate holds by grace of the New York state athletic commission—may find itself in new hands tonight.

Bidding for a share in the title now claimed jointly by Chocolate, Tommy Paul and Baby Arizmendi, is Fidel LaBarba, once world king of the flyweights.

LaBarba's third chance at the 125-pound crown is less than two years takes him into the ring at Madison Square Garden to face Chocolate in a 15-round bout duly tagged with a championship label by the state commission.

Wise Money on LaBarba

The overnight odds favored Chocolate but the fast and clever Havana Negro was no better than a chance to five choice. And what is more to the point the so-called "wise money" was going, hook, line and sinker, for LaBarba.

The sturdy Californian has met Chocolate twice before and held the Cuban all even. Chocolate won their first duel on points in May, 1929, but LaBarba earned a decision in a return battle in November, 1932.

Tonight's bout again will offer an interesting study in contrasting fighting styles. Chocolate, a skillful boxer, fast on his feet and lightning quick with his fists, does his best work at long range. He doesn't like to be crowded. LaBarba, stocky and durable, fights an aggressive plan of battle, coming in close whenever possible. Chocolate is the sharper hitter although LaBarba's body attack, especially with his left hand, is just as effective as the Cuban's cleaner hitting, directly mostly at the head.

Chocolate is Younger

Chocolate will have wide advantages in height and reach and at 25, he is two years younger than LaBarba. But the Californian has the greater stamina and the 15-round route favors his chances. Chocolate, in recent ten round matches, has shown a tendency to tire.

LaBarba's first "shot" at the featherweight title came in May, 1931, when he tackled Christopher (Bat) Battalino in a 15-round bout here. California fought one of the worst fights of his career that night and took a sound beating.

Early this year he entered a National Boxing association elimination tournament at Detroit but was eliminated by Johnny Pena of New York in the semi-finals, although most critics thought he had won the match by a wide margin.

Chocolate won New York state recognition as featherweight champion by stopping Lew Feldman of New York in the 12th round of a 15-round bout here in August. Paul, a Buffalo boy, is recognized by the N. B. A. while Arizmendi, the Mexican flash, completes the "championship" triumvirate through recognition by the California state commission.

Pick Sites for Three Western Golf Meets

Chicago (AP)—The western amateur golf championship for 1933 probably will be decided on a Chicago course, but the open and junior tournaments are on the market.

The Western Golf association decided last night to hold the amateur in Chicago, probably at the North Shore country club, a "clear track," left the western open for some city convenient to Chicago. The junior probably will be played at St. Louis. Dates for the three tournaments have not been set.

Primo, Levinsky Battle Tonight

Ample Italian Favored to Win; Predicts It Will be K. O.

Chicago (AP)—The quaint figures in the heavyweight boxing business, Primo Carnera and King Levinsky, will meet tonight in the Chicago Stadium, mostly for the money there is in it, and somewhat to determine how much or little improvement each has made since they met a year ago.

In their first meeting the ample Italian won the decision after ten rounds of fighting. Many of the 245 spectators disagreed with the verdict, however, and part of them will be back to see the act, another 10 rounder, replayed tonight. It is not likely, however, that the attendance will come close to reaching the 1931 figure, about 12,000 being expected.

Carnera, reliably reported to have improved as a boxer, will enter the ring favored to win, and has announced through his board of managers or sub-dividers, that he will do it by a knockout. Levinsky is just as confident, but hasn't said much about knocking Primo out.

There will be the usual differences in physical equipment, that hold when Carnera fights anyone. However, instead of giving away 77 pounds as he did in their previous meeting, Levinsky tonight will weigh only about 75 pounds less than the big fellow.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

Philadelphia — Johnny Datto, Cleveland, outpointed Jackie Willis, Philadelphia, (8); Jimmy Stewart, Philadelphia, stopped Midget Mike Moran, Pittsburgh, (5).

Paris — Panama Al Brown, World bantamweight champion, outpointed Franz Machters, Paris, non-title.

Patterson, N. J. — Steven Hamas, Wallington, N. J., and Duane Duncan, Kalamazoo, Mich., "no contest," (11).

Savannah, Ga. — Lou Terry, St. Louis, outpointed Spagetti Deoro, Sandusky, O., (10); Johnny Miles, St. Louis, stopped Charlie Sherer, Sandusky, (7).

Gus the Goat Will Show on Racine Mat

Milwaukee (AP)—The shoulder injury suffered by Gus Sonnenberg in a match with Don George here Wednesday night will not interfere with his engagement Monday night to meet George Mack in the main event of a mat card at Racine. Promoter Joe Krause announced. Karl Zbyszko, and John Fulton of Molina, Ill., the American legion champion, will meet in the semi-finals.

Vets Dominating Billiard Tourney

Jimmy Caras Only Youngster Able to Cope With Older Men

New York (AP)—Except for young Jimmy Caras, veterans have completely dominated the first four days of play in the national pocket billiard championship, now in progress here.

Of the three new-comers to championship play, only Caras has been able to meet the oldsters on their own ground and "dish out" a little more than he has been forced to "take." James Mills of San Jose, Calif., and Walter Franklin of Kansas City, both appearing in the national tournament for the first time as Caras, have lost six games between them.

Caras, on the other hand, had chalked up two successive victories and was tied for the lead today with three of the game's "ancients," Ralph Greenleaf of New York, and Erwin Rudolph and Pasquale Natalie, both of Chicago. Two other experienced contenders, Bennie Allen of Kansas City, and Andrew Ponzi of Philadelphia, also had perfect records with one victory apiece.

Caras, Natalie and Rudolph all won their second games yesterday. Caras defeated Mills 125 to 76, in 19 innings; Natalie whipped Franklin, 125 to 73 in 25 innings, and Rudolph defeated Kelly, 125 to 46 in 22 innings.

Here's How Appleton Divides Tax Dollar

With an $18 tax rate, set Monday night by the common council, Appleton-tax payers in 1933 will pay 7.39 per cent of their taxes for general city purposes, 6.98 per cent for schools, and 3.63 per cent for county purposes. The tax dollar is divided as follows: $4.11 for city, $3.88 for schools, and $2.01 for county purposes.

Cannot Retrace Economic Steps, Bolles Declares

Only Way Out is Way Ahead, Janesville Editor Points Out

Fond du Lac (AP)—Expansion of production through use of machinery at a rate unparalleled in earlier history has brought the world face-to-face with a chaotic economic condition from which there can be no retreat, Stephen Bolles, Janesville editor, said last night in an address before the Fond du Lac Twilight club.

"Industry, the farm or the factory cannot go on as before. We cannot get back. There is but one way out; it is the way ahead," he said.

"We no longer have a problem of production. It is a problem of distribution and profitable selling. We have a greater problem removed from machinery, mechanics—the human problem—how to keep people employed and paid and thus fed by a natural, regular operation of the cycle of producer and consumer."

"We are going to answer that question by doing it—by starting the wage flow, or we are going to dismantle our factories, let industry rot and the farm go back where it never was in America—in the hands of peasantry and tenants."

Bolles cited the invention of the cotton gin as an example of how the whole destiny of the world can be changed by a single machine. The cotton gin, he said, brought about slave labor and the Civil war, the annexation of Texas and the Mexican war, and a "hodgepodge" system of currency which had been a bar to European credit from the days of Hamilton's assumption act to the Civil war.

"The genius of man, free and untrammled, has created the revolution which is having its consequences in every American home. In making machines of steel and iron and wood we have mechanized humanity. This bloodless civil war of 150 years has brought us here. There is no going back. We must go ahead for we shall never be the same again."

Bar Coins Sent to Mexico From Mails

Effective at once, bank notes and coins of all kinds, except gold, are prohibited admission in mails to Mexico, and will, until Feb. 1, 1933, continue to be returned to office of origin, according to word received here at the postoffice from the U. S. Postal department. However, as an exception, the Bank of Mexico and the banks associated with that institution are authorized to import bank notes for the purpose of exchange, it was pointed out.

Warn Women to be More Careful With Purse

Police Chief George T. Prim today issued a warning to housewives to be more careful in handling their purses while shopping. The chief said that in the past two weeks he has received a series of complaints from women losing their purses. Many times the women leave them on counters or in their shopping bags, where they can easily be stolen by the unscrupulous. The chief said that during the holiday shopping season especially this practice was prevalent and should be controlled. He urged women to keep their purses with them all the time to prevent theft.

Paper Company Worker Is Burned to Death

Wisconsin Rapids (AP)—McKinley DuFree, 38, an employee of the Nekoosa-Edwards Paper Co., at Port Edwards, burned to death yesterday in a tool shed on an island where he had gone to dry himself after falling through the ice of the Wisconsin river.

His body was found in the ruins after the fire had been extinguished by the Port Edwards fire department. A gasoline can with the bottom blown out was found nearby, leading authorities to believe he had attempted to kindle a fire in the tool house stove.

DuFree and Tom Green, a fellow workman, had been cutting ice away from the dam near the paper mill when DuFree slipped into the water. A few minutes after he had gone to dry himself Green saw smoke issuing from the shed. When he opened the door he was greeted by a blast of flame.

DuFree is survived by his widow and four children.

Why does Kroger have
4500 COFFEE GRINDERS like this—

instead of ONE like this?

BECAUSE it means the best-tasting coffee in your cup! Sure, it's more work to grind the fast-selling Kroger Coffee pound by pound as you buy them in the store, but no coffees can equal them in flavor.

It's a Kroger law—French Brand and Jewel Coffees must never be ground a minute before they're sold. Fresh-roasted daily, rushed to the stores in the whole bean in simple paper bags, these coffees are at the peak of their flavor.

No fancy packages to push the prices up. No shelf-loading to pull the flavor down. Just try these ground-to-your-order coffees and see:

REGULAR PRICES

AW! Here in this simple, sealed bag is a coffee for coffee lovers. French Brand Coffee! Full-bodied and flavorful. Be sure compare in the world at its price.

(Associated Press Financial Editor)

New York—Bulls again grew venturesome in today's stock market, after staying in retirement yesterday. During the last hour, stocks were turned over in substantial volume, and prices ran up 1 to 2 more points in many issues. The turnover approximated 800,000 shares.

Bullish activity appeared to be prompted largely by the absence of important selling pressure. Sentiment has grown somewhat more cheerful in Wall Street this week. While news of a particularly bullish import has been lacking, some traders have felt that the market seemed thoroughly sold out, and have been persistently trying for a rally.

Such pool favorites as United Aircraft, the Montgomery Ward, and Chrysler were turned over in large blocks. Aircraft rising more than a point, and the last two named getting up fractionally. Gains of about 2 to 3 points appeared in Allied Chemical, American Can, Consolidated Gas, Case, and Union Pacific, while issues up a point or so included U. S. Steel, DuPont, International Harvester, American Telephone, Santa Fe and others. Safeway was off 1 1/2 at one time, but covered to show a gain of a point, on short covering after the dividend rate was cut to $3 annually, from $5.

The November railway earnings statements will soon be appearing, and Wall-st estimates indicate that some recession from October will be shown, but that the comparison with last year will be about as favorable as the October showing.

Such optimism as has developed in brokerage quarters appeared to be based largely on the absence of important selling in the market, and the market record of past years showing that a rally lasting several weeks has usually started in December. Some tax selling has been appearing although the new tax law has tended to restrict somewhat the selling from that source. There is said to have been some switching by long-term investors to establish losses on securities held more than two years.

The copper shares again reflected the apparent deadlock at the international producers conference, which has been trying to bring about further cuts in output. Prices even lower than the present 5-cent-a-pound were predicted in some quarters.

Oils, on the other hand, have attracted some buying, prompted by the action of the Texas Railroad commission in ordering a sharp reduction in allowable output. Despite the situation of the railroads, brokers report some investment buying of shares of a few of the strongest roads. Chemicals have also been attracting some interest.

Downward Trend For Hog Prices

Buyers Refrain From Trading Until Decline Is Registered

Chicago—The hog prices tumbled lower today when buyers refused to act until 5 to 10 cent recessions had been made. This dropped the top to $2.25 and placed the average price down around 3.10.

Fresh receipts of 20,000 exceeded advance estimates by 2,500 head, but receipts at the 12 principal markets were much below a week ago. The cold wave braced sagging pork prices here yesterday, but mild weather in the east did not encourage demand.

Cattle trade had a slow start, but the market was largely a week and a cleanup affair. The run consisted chiefly of plain quality steers which did not appeal to any class of buyers. Mostly steady prices were paid for loads of light steers and yearlings singled out by more aggressive buyers.

Buyers found sellers in the sheep sheds in a bullish mood, although the run was considered adequate for normal. Slaughter plants were in only 800 lambs direct and orders for choice rams were liberal enough to warrant stronger asking prices.

Bullish Reports Fail to Attract Wheat Purchasers

Lack of Moisture for Winter Wheat Reported in Kansas, Oklahoma

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN
(Associated Press Market Editor)

Chicago—(P.)—Sensationally bullish conditions regarding the new domestic winter wheat crop, especially in Kansas and Oklahoma, received much attention today, but new buying orders lacked volume.

Reports were current that almost no moisture had been received for more than a month over an area that normally has 20,000,000 acres of wheat. In the absence of active buying, wheat future deliveries averaged only fractionally higher, influenced little by export purchases of more than 1,000,000 bushels of wheat from Canada.

Advices at hand in regard to Russia's reported sweeping action as to a virtually complete halt of grain exports said Russian representatives abroad had been instructed to notify purchasers. Resulting price upturns here were in the face of reports that threshing returns in Australia were exceeding expectations, and that Australian visible stocks of wheat were rapidly increasing. Bearish Argentine crop advices were likewise almost ignored.

Contributing to wheat price gains was firmness of securities and of corn. Precarious conditions for domestic winter wheat southward were an additional incentive to buyers. Belief was apparently general that the next government crop report from Washington would show a larger acreage abandonment of winter wheat than hitherto has been indicated. Sharp curtailment of corn receipts gave independent strength to corn and provisions were responsive to downturns of hog values.

Wheat closed unsettled at a shade to 1/2 above yesterday's finish Dec. 4 1/2 @ 45, May 4 1/2 @ 45, corn unchanged to 1/2 up Dec. 23, May 27 1/2 @ 45; advanced, and provisions unchanged to 2 cents down.
